To Make a Good Picture. Cow in Calf $20. Working, Not for Money. War Will Vanish.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.

HERE IN Los Angeles where stars are developed and pictures are made, one young man, Paul Bern, who superintends and directs for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, knows exactly what he is trying to do.

In few words he gave information valuable to all directors, scenario writers and actors. He said:

"When you make a picture, ask yourself 'What do the majority of the people LACK?'"

Men and women go to the moving pictures to find that which they have not in themselves, or in their surroundings. If it be true that a middle-aged woman in Washington, D. C., went every single afternoon and evening to see Valentino, there was something about Valentino, probably, that was lacking in her middle-aged husband.

The average human being feels the need of many things, energy, intensity of living, free expression of emotion.

Writers, directors and actors will succeed in proportion as they are able to supply what is lacking in the majority of us.

It is not easy to know what the public craves. Livingston, traveling through darkest Africa, could not have imagined that the pitiful black children crowding around him were begging for salt. It was that they wanted. Sugar did not interest them.

IT WAS SUGGESTED here in a moment of Pacific Coast sunshiny mental relaxation that in days to come men will not work to make money, but to do good.

An impatient reader asks:

"How will you interest men in working, if not to accumulate property? Did you ever know of anybody working really hard except for money?"

Samuel Johnson had the same idea when he said that nobody ever wrote well except for pay, but he was mistaken.

JOHN BUNYAN wrote "Pilgrim's Progress" with no thought of pay. And his book has been more widely translated and published than any other except the Bible.

Newton worked at his law of gravitation, giving to human beings the most important knowledge they ever received, without any desire for pay and with intense happiness. When he perceived that the calculations leading to his formula "directly as the mass and inversely as the square of the distance" were about to work out satisfactorily, his excitement was so great that he had to let another finish the calculations.

MICHELANGELO, as he wrote to the Pope, made nothing from his work on St. Peter's Cathedral "except for the benefit to my soul."

LORD ROBERT CECIL, intelligent and sincere worker for world peace, says:

"Unless the world disarms, it will perish."

The day is coming when war, which is wholesale murder, will disappear from earth as cannibalism and slavery have practically disappeared.

But the world will not disarm yet and it will not "perish."

THE WORLD stood the 100 years' war, the seven years' war, and the dark ages that followed the inrush of barbarians after the downfall of Rome.

It endured the "black death" that killed one-quarter of all the people in Europe, equal, in proportion, to five times as many as were killed in the great war. This world is able to stand a great deal in the way of brutality and suffering.

THE TROUBLE in Asia will probably amount to no more than "punitive expeditions" by skillful Japanese militarists, and the final seizure of such territory as Japan desires. It will not be any real war.

If two of the great civilized nations of Europe start another war, they will deserve all they get, and that will be a great deal.

GRANDI, ITALY'S able Foreign Minister, congratulates the United States on its attitude in favor of diminished armaments. The Italian's politeness is appreciated, but many Americans are unable to understand why any country except the United States should be consulted as to United States preparedness, or why this country should need the approval of any other.

France, England, Italy, Germany, did not consult this country before 1914, when the big war was brewing. We don't start wars, or want them. We only want to be let alone and we should keep in condition to enforce that desire at all times.

AS TO THE League of Nations that was to bring peace, if necessary by force, the China-

PLANE HITS EXPO BLDG.; FLIER SAFE

Pittsburgh to Cleveland Mail Flier Saved by Parachute at Point

Going out of control high over the downtown district shortly before noon today, a Pittsburgh-to-Cleveland mail plane crashed through the roof of the old Exposition Building, a Pittsburgh landmark, in Duquesne way at the Point.

Melvin Garlow, 27, of Homestead, the pilot, who had left Bettis Field but a few minutes before, leaped from the ship as it fell.

His parachute opened and, catching on the Duquesne way side of the building, suspended him about three feet from the ground.

He extricated himself, apparently unhurt.

Garlow was flying a Pennsylvania Airlines ship on the regular mail run.

Garlow left Bettis Field at 11:30 o'clock. He took off in the face of heavy fog.

The plane fell through the roof of what is known as the Mechanical Building of the old landmark, now used as a City of Pittsburgh garage.

Five or six autos, parked there, were badly damaged as the plane tore through them.

Train Taken Off, Clock Sales Leap

CAMBRIDGE CITY, Ind., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The folks in this town are missing the "toot, toot" of the 6:30 a. m. train.

They used to get up in the morning when they heard it, but the train has been discontinued.

The result was that the hardware stores and jewelry shops have picked up a good deal in alarm clock sales.

Expelled Bishop Ill in Ohio Home

GALION, O., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Bishop William Montgomery Brown, at one time prominent in the Protestant Episcopal Church, is seriously ill at his home here, victim of a heart attack. He is 77.

Brown, former bishop of Arkansas, gained wide attention in 1924 when he was found guilty of heresy and expelled from the church by his fellow bishops.

Gypsy Queen Protests Night Club Frolics

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Smoking a corn-cob pipe is all right for women in the opinion of Queen Louise, dowager of a band of gypsies. In fact she smokes one herself. But when Princess Ruby, her daughter-in-law, took $150 to buy modern clothes to go traipsing about to night clubs, Queen Louise had her arrested.

80,000 TO SEE ARMY, IRISH

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(INS.)—The biggest crowd at the East's football clashes today will be in the Yankees' Stadium here, where Notre Dame engages Army. Eighty thousand will see the conflict.

Mrs. Knute Rockne, widow of the Notre Dame coach, will watch the game, as will Secretary of War Hurley.

At Boston 45,000 were expected to view the Dartmouth-Stanford game, and 30,000, the smallest crowd in years, will watch Yale and Princeton at New Haven.

No Pittsburgh college teams have scheduled games today.

Minister Stricken On Mercy Task Dies

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The Rev. Edward A. Hodil, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church here, who was stricken while delivering Thanksgiving baskets to the poor on Thursday, died here early today.

Suicide Blames Wife's Death on 'Party'

Distraught over the death of his wife, which he charged in a farewell note was the result of an all-night party in a downtown all-night drinking party in a downtown hotel with three doctors, Frank Jardanawski, of 3213 Elsinore square, early today ended his life in an alley in the rear of 2422 Sidney street, South Side.

Jardanawski's wife, Frances, died in March in Mercy Hospital of "sleeping sickness," coroner's records revealed.

The man's body, a bullet wound in the head, was found by Thomas Crawley, a few hours after Jardanawski had left the home of his mother-in-law, according to morgue officials.

Accusing the doctors of causing his wife's death, Jardanawski wrote in a letter found in a coat pocket:

"The only thing I can do now is to write it all and then kill myself."

Jardanawski, father of two children, declared his wife was the victim of a "frameup." In his note he said his wife had gone to visit a physician in a downtown office building and while there had been induced to drink highballs with two others who were called in.

It was then proposed, he wrote, that the doctors and Mrs. Jardanawski go and meet two other girls and spend the evening together. They went to a hotel, according to Jardanawski, but the other girls never arrived.

Mayor in Counsel Role Paying Visit In Prison.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—This was to be a red letter day in the life of Tom Mooney.

James J. Walker, his attorney, better known as the Mayor of New York, was to visit the famous convict in San Quentin prison.

Mooney, now a stoop-shouldered, gray-haired man with a prison pallor, is serving a life sentence on conviction of having participated in the Preparedness Day bombing in San Francisco July 22, 1916, when 10 persons were killed and 40 injured.

Mayor Walker, who next Tuesday will make a dramatic plea before the Governor of California for a pardon for Mooney on the ground that he is an innocent man, is going to see Mooney in the role of an attorney visiting his client.

Baby Swallows Bolt; Rescue Efforts Fail

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—(INS.)—While crawling about on the floor of his home Edward Graves, 18 months old, found an iron bolt. He tried to swallow it. Today the child was dead, despite efforts to extract the bolt from the baby's throat.

3 TRAINMEN KILLED IN WRECK

Two of Crew Trapped In Burning Caboose After Crash Near Blairsville

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

BLAIRSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 28.—Three Blairsville trainmen were killed early today when two Pennsylvania Railroad trains collided at the east end of Bow Tunnel, six miles west of here.

Frantic and valiant efforts of other members of the train crews to rescue two of the men from a flaming caboose were futile.

A westbound cattle train crashed into the rear of a slower moving coal train, setting fire to the caboose of the latter.

Flagman James J. Shearer, 46, of 163 Pearl street, and Brakeman Robert O. Libengood, 50, of Rural road, died in the flames.

Conductor Thomas W. McIntyre, 54, of 355 South Stewart street, was hurled clear of the burning car and into the Conemaugh River. He was so severely injured that he died a short time after being brought to Blairsville for medical aid.

All of the dead were members of the coal train crew.

Each train, Pennsylvania officials said, was carrying about 40 cars.

RAIN, WARMER FORECAST

Rising temperatures, accompanied by rain, tomorrow were to follow in the wake of te season's first heavy fall of snow, which still slowed up traffic both in the city and in the country. Street and highways crews were still at work making roads passable. One death was attributed to the storm. Henry Janke, 77, of 611 Collins avenue, died of a heart attack while shoveling snow from in front of his house.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Winter has completed its first coast-to-coast drive of the season. With snow deposited on many states east of the Mississippi Valley, atmospheric conditions generally were stagnated today.

Both rain and sunshine were forecast for the East, but little precipitation was in sight. Cold weather, however, with temperatures ranging as low as 16 at Greenville, Me., extended through New England and upstate New York.

TOKIO RAPS 'COERCIVE' STAND

Secretary's Remarks Termed 'Intimidating;' Strong Representations Expected

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Secretary Stimson reiterated today that he found it difficult to credit or understand dispatches telling of a Japanese advance on Chinchow, Manchuria, in view of the assurance Japan had given against hostilities in that quarter.

TOKIO, Nov. 26.—(AP.)—The Japanese government today cabled Ambassador Debuchi at Washington requesting confirmation of press reports of Secretary Stimson's statement yesterday expressing concern over the Manchurian situation and it was said in government circles that, if the reports are confirmed, strong diplomatic representations will be made to the American government.

The statement was regarded here, it was said, as of "an intimidating nature," assuming the Secretary was correctly quoted in press dispatches, and as a "virtual violation of the nine-power act", because it might serve to stiffen China's attitude regarding evacuation of Chinchow and eventually result in a clash between the Chinese and Japanese forces there.

JAPAN AGITATED

If the reports of the Secretary's statement which, as published here, referred to the Japanese Army as "running amuck" had been published yesterday before orders were given to Gen. Honjo to stop the advance on Chinchow, one government authority stated, the army might have been aroused to such an extent that it would have continued the advance re-

BOY, 14, SLAIN BY BANDITS

A 14-year-old boy was shot and killed last night when he attempted to block the holdup of his sister in their home, 712 Watt place.

Edward Crawford, Negro, was pronounced dead upon his arrival at Passavant Hospital. Police say he was shot through the mouth when he defied two masked Negroes who were holding up his sister at his home.

According to police, the robbers were after the $1,400 insurance collected after the death of Mrs. Crawford, who was burned to death Armistice Day.

The money was demanded from Bennie Crawford, 18, sister of the dead boy, by two men who entered the home. The girl handed her purse containing $5 to the robbers, telling them it was all the money in the house.

Asleep on the third floor Edward, and his brother, James, 9, descended to the stairway and ordered the men out. Two shots from the bandits answered the boy's demand.

Romance Shattered By Tragedy, Say Friends

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—(INS.)—Ina Claire, stage and screen actress, was in seclusion and reported on the verge of a breakdown today following the sudden death of Robert Ames, the actor, in New York.

Death, said friends, had shattered a romance between the pair.

Hedda Hopper, actress friend of Miss Claire, declared:

"Miss Claire had known Mr. Ames for 15 years. Naturally, the report of his death came as a great shock to Miss Claire and she is in no condition to discuss it."

Miss Hopper said that Miss Claire had denied she and Ames were engaged, although Miss Claire was known to have planned

SUIT OVER LOST WATER FILED

The City of Pittsburgh today sued the W. & H. Walker Company of Herrs Island for $417,670, plus penalties and interest at ½ per cent a month from November, 1925 to April, 1931, for alleged fraudulent conversion of more than 1,000,000 gallons of city water for use in their plant.

The suit, filed in Common Pleas Court this morning, charged that the Walker company, which manufactures soap, chemicals, extracts and fertilizers, tapped city water lines which had been placed on the island for fire protection only, for use in its factories.

Tom Mix Fights for Life To 'Please Kids Again'

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—(INS.)—American boyhood today was credited in large part for the rally Tom Mix, circus and screen cowboy star, is making against peritonitis threatening his life.

Hundreds of telegrams cheering Mix have been received at the hospital.

Tears came to Mix's eyes as the telegrams were read to him. He said:

"I'll get well and again do my best to please the kids."

The official bulletin of physicians read:

ANOTHER LONG COUNT — By Quin Hall

JAPAN SCORES STIMSON

gardless of the government's stand.

All government departments were agitated over the statement but particularly the War Office which immediately began to issue statements.

TREATY CITED

A Foreign Office spokesman said:

"In view of the remarks attributed to him in dispatches from the United States, it is to be wondered if Mr. Stimson has studied article 1, clause 4, of the nine-power treaty dealing particularly with the question of countenancing action inimical to the security of friendly states.

"By untimely intervention, as described in dispatches, Mr. Stimson's action might be taken as an indication of helping China unduly in violation of the nine-power pact.

"If the United States takes such a stand as might be deduced from the assertions attributed to Mr. Stimson, then it might easily be interpreted that Washington countenances the actions of Chang Hsueh Liang."

Meanwhile the war office announced that reinforcements will be sent to Jinchow, China, where fighting was reported in progress in several sections. The announcement said the cabinet approved the measure and the Japanese consul at Tientsin requested the reinforcements.

Japan Defies League's Right to 'Dictate'

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT

International News Service

QUAI D'ORSAY, PARIS, Nov. 28—Once again defying the League of Nations, Japan today exercised the right to attack and occupy the city of Chinchow at any time conditions warrant such a step.

Replying to the latest appeal from Aristide Briand, French foreign minister and president of the League council, for cessation of Sino-Japanese hostilities in Manchuria, the Tokio government displayed a firm tone, inferentially repudiating the League's right to dictate its military activities.

17 INDICTED IN ALIEN PLOTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—A huge conspiracy which resulted in a steady illicit parade of aliens into the United States was believed by federal officials to have been smashed with return of 31 indictments here against 17 lawyers, consular employes and members of the immigration and naturalization forces.

The indictments grew out of an investigation begun four months ago by United States Attorney George Z. Medalie, assisted by Murray W. Garsson, special assistant Secretary of Labor.

The inquiry spread to Chicago and other Lake cities where indictments already have been returned.

'BOY SHERIFF' HELD AS BANDIT

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 28—(AP)—Schuyler Marshall, Jr., 35, former "college kid sheriff" of Dallas, and Herbert Scales, Dallas clubman, were brought to Fort Worth from Dallas last night as additional charges of burglary and robbery were filed against them and other alleged members of a reputed gang of bank robbers.

The two men, together with four alleged accomplices, were accused of robbery with firearms and kidnaping in connection with a frustrated attempt to rob the Merchants Bank and the State Bank of Mansfield. It is charged the accused men abducted Elbert Farr, power plant engineer at Mansfield, last Saturday as part of a plot to seize control of the town and loot the banks.

No actual attempt was made to loot the institutions under guard because of a tip that burglaries were planned.

Marshall was elected sheriff in 1924 and served until his term expired December 31, 1926. He was just out of college when elected. A few months later he defied a mob of 5,000 which stormed the jail and attempted to lynch two Negroes.

JURY ADDS 34 ELECTION LAW INDICTMENTS

2 Candidates, 2 Officers Included in New List Increasing Total to 144

Thirty-four more persons today stand indicted for election law violations at the September primaries, following "clean up day" by the November grand jury. This jury had indicted 48 other persons and previous juries 62, bringing the total to 144.

Three election board officers, a constable and two candidates for constable were included among those indicted.

Those indicted yesterday were John De Santis, Andrew Rafetta, Ray Porter, Robert Rue and Mark Parker, Election Board of the First District of Forward Township, charged with neglecting their duties, ignoring challenges and electing watchers.

James Rue, candidate for Constable in Forward Township, charged with intimidating voters.

Victor Jadinak, policeman of McKees Rocks, charged with entering polls of Second District, Second Ward, illegally.

Mike Legnin, Constable of McKees Rocks, charged with intimidating voters in the First District of the Second Ward.

POLICEMAN ACCUSED

George Matovich, McKees Rocks policeman, charged with acting as inspector in the Second District of the Second Ward illegally.

George Pansyko, accused of stealing sample ballots in the First District, Second Ward, McKees Rocks.

Saul Roth, special policeman, charged with entering polls of First District, Second Ward, McKees Rocks.

George Chilcott, candidate for constable—charged with intimidating voters in the First District, First Ward, McKees Rocks.

Ralph Golling—charged with intimidating voters in Second Ward, McKees Rocks.

Daniel B. Hemphill—charged with intimidating voters in Fourth District, Second Ward, McKees Rocks.

William Husak, accused of performing duties of election officer illegally in First District, First Ward, Duquesne.

Investigation Ordered Into Ames' Death

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—Robert Ames, whose portrayal of juvenile roles on Broadway won him stage fame and a screen career, was found dead late yesterday in his hotel suite under circumstances which led authorities to order an autopsy.

Dr. Eugene E. Marcovici, summoned after the 42-year-old actor's body was discovered, said he believed a hemorrhage of the bladder traceable to a kidney disorder was the cause of death.

An inquiry by police developed, they said, that Ames' body, nude except for a silk dressing gown over his shoulders, was lying in the doorway between the bedroom and livingroom when a chambermaid entered the suite. Six whisky bottles, some of them full, were in the suite, police reported, and about 100 sleeping powders were in a box in the bedroom.

An assistant from the medical examiner's office directed removal of the body to the morgue for an autopsy.

Two detectives who visited the suite reported "an investigation is being made pending the outcome of an autopsy." The sleeping powders also were ordered analyzed.

BORAH'S PEACE TALK CAUSES PARIS RIOT

Heads Battered, Speakers Jeered as Parisians Storm Meeting for Disarmament

PARIS, Nov. 28—(AP)—There were a number of bruised heads about Paris today as a result of a riot which broke up the meeting of the International Disarmament Organization last night. In the turmoil a number of foreign speakers, including former Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton of the United States, were howled down.

Police were called out, fists flew on several occasions before the eyes of distinguished visitors and former Premier Edouard Herriot, chairman of the meeting, banged his gavel futilely and asked:

"Where is French politeness?"

A broadcast address by Senator William E. Borah was scarcely audible because of static and as soon as a translator began to read it in French, booing and jeering broke loose again.

A nationalist meeting in another hall held in protest against the alleged political character of the disarmament gathering proceeded quietly at the same time.

FIGHT WITH FISTS

Former Ambassador Houghton was interrupted by a fist fight which began just below the speaker's stand as he spoke the first paragraph of his address of greeting from the millions of Americans united to aid in the peaceful solution of international divergences. He was forced to sit down, unable to go further.

Mlle. Louise Weiss, who was a member of Premier Laval's party on his trip to the United States, next was howled down, as also was Joseph Joos, member of the German Reichstag. Herr Joos then resumed his speech under police protection but he was interrupted by shouts of "Liar!" and by catcalls.

Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, noted British statesman, was greeted with howls as he rose to read messages from the Archbishop of Canterbury, David Lloyd George and the British National Women's Council.

Former Premier Paul Painleve was cheered when he said France could not disarm until it had an assurance of security.

REED OPPOSES WAIVING DEBTS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Opposition to the cancellation of World War debts, to full extension of the moratorium plan and entrance of the United States into the League Court was voiced by Senator David A. Reed last night. He indorsed a tax on commodities other than food and cheap articles of clothing as a means of aiding government finances. He said:

"I do not believe that the moratorium should be extended in its entirety after next July. There is many a country indebted to us far better able to pay than we are to cancel. There will be torrents of propaganda in Washington for complete cancellation."

He said he did not believe it right for the American taxpayers to pay the "full luxury" of the last war and the people who started it get off "scot free."

Senator Reed, who spoke at the "Founders' Day" dinner of the Union League, renounced what he termed "handouts" on the part of the government, protested against the attempt to inaugurate the dole system in any form.

Today

Japan incident shows how little the League amounts to when real trouble comes.

China knows by now that any nation that cannot rely on itself has nothing to rely on.

Washington reports:

"Secretary of State Stimson is much concerned about Japanese warlike maneuvers in the neighborhood of Chinchow, Manchuria."

Why must he worry? We are certainly not the keepers of our Japanese and Chinese brothers, and could not be. Why not worry about the United States, and its ability to meet any emergency that may arise?

Hunger Marchers Demand Hot Lunch at Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 28—Uniontown has been called upon to furnish a hot lunch for about 800 hunger marchers scheduled to stop here next Saturday on their way to the national Capitol to visit President Hoover.

A demand to this effect has been presented Fayette County Commissioners by Miss Rebecca Grecht, representative of the national hunger march committee. An answer was requested today.

Permission to hold a meeting on the Courthouse steps, following a parade of the principal streets, was granted.

The hunger "marchers" from various parts of the United States will arrive in trucks about noon and will remain until groups from other sections of Western Pennsylvania arrive. Then the caravan will start to Washington over the National Pike. The schedule calls for arrival there on December 12.

Miss Grecht estimated that the hot lunch would cost $150.

A meeting of the hunger march organization is to be held Sunday evening at Cardale, near Republic. Final details for the hunger march through Western Pennsylvania will be settled at that time.

FIRE BURNING THROUGH HOPEWELL, PA. . . . . 25 TO 30 FAMILIES WERE LEFT HOMELESS IN THE MOUNTAIN COLD

Wisconsin Farmer Claims Wendel 75 Millions

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—(AP)—Five new claimants to the $75,000,000 estate of Miss Ella V. V. E. Wendel came to light here when the law firm of Rubien & Bregoff filed notice of their claims in Surrogates' Court.

John Wendel, a farmer of Waukesha, Wis., claims fifth degree consanguinity, maintaining that he is a nephew of John Gottlieb Wendel, the grandfather of Miss Ella. The other four claimants are Mrs. Elizabeth Hoppe, 78 years old, of West Bend, Wis., who says she is a grandniece of the same man, and her three nieces, Miss Henrietta Obermeyer, Miss Clara Obermeyer and Miss Josephine Haas. The three younger women are the children of Mrs. Rosa Strupp (nee Rudex), who is the sister of Mrs. Hoppe.

Albert J. Rubien said if John Wendel's claims were validated his relationship would be the closest of any of the claimants who have come forward so far.

INQUEST HOLDS BUTLER MAN IN DENTIST'S MYSTERY DEATH

WITNESS TELLS OF BRAWL AT RUM PARTY

Deents in Prisoner's Auto Shown Corner; Victim's Body Found Along Road

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Roy Maness, 34, of Butler, today was held for grand jury investigation on recommendation of a coroner's jury in the death of Dr. William O. Koerner, 30, Butler dentist, whose body was found along a highway near Bruin yesterday.

The jury reached a verdict last night that Dr. Koerner died of a fractured skull. Considerable mystery surrounds his death, which police established, climaxed a liquor party at the home of Mrs. Estella Stevenson, near Bruin.

C. B. Steel, a guest at the party, told the jury that Maness, coming back into the house after an argument with Dr. Koerner, declared:

"If anyone takes in on me, I'll give them one!"

Steel was unable to further explain the remark. Dr. Koerner, he said, never returned to the house, but was seen to start walking down the highway.

Steel testified Maness left the party five minutes later in his automobile. The Maness automobile, shown to the jury, bore several indentations. Steel said that when he was taking a girl home from the party some time afterward he first saw a hat in the roadway and then Dr. Koerner's body.

FAMINE STALKS SNOWBOUND INDIANS

Food Supplies Dwindle at Reservations Where Hunt For 300 on Mesa Continues

GALLUP, N. M., Nov. 28. (AP.)—Famine today arose to confront Indian and white rescue workers in the stricken areas of Western New Mexico, where nine Indians have died and between 300 and 400 pinon nut hunters are still missing following last Saturday's blizzard.

The bodies of a Navajo Indian and baby were reached last night. Two Indians whose names previously had been included in the death toll were found alive, but dangerously ill from exposure.

Superintendent John H. Hunter of the southern Navajo jurisdiction at Fort Defiance, Ariz., said he would appeal to Washington for relief of the Indians of his jurisdiction. The small supply of corn at Fort Defiance has dwindled away.

SHEEP TRAPPED

Hunter dispatched three snowplows from Fort Defiance to break a trail for the Indians' sheep to new forage areas. The flocks, he said, were trapped in remote mountain sections with no food.

Indian officials are faced with three immediate problems. They must round up all the Indians scattered from Zuni to Quemado, 200 miles to the south. They must bring in those Indians whose horses are dead. They must get all the Indians back to their homes.

WARNS NAVAJOS

Supt. W. A. Trotter of the Zuni Agency has ruled that Navajos seeking refugee at Zuni may remain only 24 hours and then must be started toward their homes. The Zuni Agency, he explained, is in no better shape for food than the Navajo Agency.

While Trotter and Hunter believed that the real emergency has passed with the arrival of milder weather, both pointed out that a sudden temperature drop might yet cause heavy casualties among the Indians who are still on the mesa.

PLAN TO FIGHT WATER COST CHANGE

South Hills Communities Protest Chamber Proposal To End Payment by City

Plans for a demonstration before City Council against change in the arrangement by which the city pays the South Pittsburgh Water Company the difference between the city water rate and the company's rate in many South Hills districts were made last night at a mass meeting at South High School.

Representatives from Sheraden, Chartiers Township, Beechview, Hays, Knoxville and Brookline attended, and heads of boards of trade were appointed to notify citizens of the time for the hearing before Council at which the question of canceling the agreement with the South Pittsburgh Water Company will be discussed.

$240,000 COST TO CITY

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board have suggested terminating the agreement. The difference paid to the South Pittsburgh Water Company by the city in 1932 will amount to approximately $340,000.

Attorney William J. Blakely, of Brookline, declared his community came into the city with the understanding it was to receive a lower water rate. He attacked the Pittsburgh Water Company's charges, and declared it is impossible to determine their costs. He said:

"The city should condemn the lines of the South Pittsburgh Water Company and take them over. That is the best answer to the problem."

HIGH RATE CITED

Harry Bastow, president of the Allied Board of Trade, declared that not only the citizens of the South Hills but those of the Homewood-Brushton area should get water at the city price. At present, he explained, the Homewood-Brushton citizens are paying higher than the city rate to the Pennsylvania Water Company, and said that this fact will probably be used to attack the South Hills arrangement.

Other speakers were R. T. Lewis, of the Sheraden Board of Trade; C. P. Murray, of the Chartiers Board of Trade; C. V. Roeper, of the Beechview Civic League; W. C. Selleman, of Hays, and Felix Notte, of Knoxville.

PHILA. FRIENDS RESENT SNUB TO BUTLER

Home City Memorial Group To Claim Tablet Removed From Navy Headquarters

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28. (AP.)—Efforts to bring to Philadelphia the bronze tablet honoring Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, which was removed from the Navy Building in Washington to the Marine post at Quantico, Va., at the order of the Navy Department, will be made by Philadelphia friends of the late Marine officer, it was announced today.

Major Maguey and Major Moore will be entrusted in bringing the tablet here. Heretofore the actions of the Navy Department in a most unfortunate and glaring manner declaring:

"This adds another page to the book that tells of shameful facts in the history of our nation. This memorial tablet, erected to this living man who had performed valiant service, was in reality a bitter pill to take by official Washington excepting his intimate admirers and close friends.

"The 'rocking-chair' army was not in sympathy with this movement and was content and happy to see this 'devil dog' kicked around by an unfaithful Mayor and humiliated before the world as a political outcast."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The fighting abilities of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired, command the admiration of the chief of naval operations but his remarks about 'swivel chair admirals' are dismissed by the admiral as piffle.

The first Navy official to comment on Butler's magazine article, Admiral William V. Pratt, the operations chief, wanted to know:

"Who are these 'desk admirals,' anyway?"

All the admirals he knew, Pratt added, either have put some in from sea duty or are about to go to sea. Not one, he said, would fit Butler's description.

CHILD WELFARE IMPERILED BY LACK OF FUND

Medical Authorities Fear Juvenile Disease Spread; Cite Need of Public Aid

A list of Welfare Fund contributors appears on Page 9.

Unless relief is provided to distressed families in this district during the winter, Allegheny County may have to pay heavy toll in the form of dreaded child diseases, medical authorities of the Public Health Nursing Association believe. It is feared that epidemics such as swept Pittsburgh immediately after the World War are given impetus.

Many doctors, it is said, have refused to accept patients from present relief agencies, having learned from bitter experience that the average family on relief must do without milk, vegetables and fruit. Dr. W. W. Brady, director of medical service of the Welfare Fund, and his aide, Dr. H. T. Pyle, are both men who are particularly concerned with the rise in cases of ophthalmia, caused by lack of vitamin A, owing to a shortage in the diet of milk and green vegetables.

DISEASE SPREAD SEEN

Within the last six months five such cases have been reported in the county and unless an adequate program of health service is carried out along with family and unemployment relief there is not only danger but certainty of widespread increase in child disease.

The Public Health Nursing Association is one of the 77 units comprising the Welfare Fund. The joint campaign of the Welfare Fund and the Allegheny County Emergency Association for $5,981,284 will be closed Monday.

SKIMMED MILK SUPPLIED

Lacking adequate supplies of milk, three skimmed-milk stations have been established in the district, the skimmed milk having all qualities except butter fat. One station in McKees Rocks is dispensing 50 gallons a day to undernourished children. Other stations are in Lawrenceville and in Kennedy Township.

Recent studies here show that the rate is different from an increasing tuberculosis rate, reflecting the effect of the depression.

Joseph Dilworth, chairman of the drive, stated today that considerable advance was expected when final reports are presented Monday by the volunteer workers.

DRY RAID DEATH PROBE WIDENS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—A report that a Colorado dry agent, recently suspended, was appointed by a deputy administrator upon the promise of a loan of money moved Director Woodcock to a personal investigation.

The federal enforcement chief decided to leave for Denver to make direct inquiry into the administration of John F. Vivian in the states of Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Arizona.

Henry Dierks is the agent in question. He is now facing a charge of murder, for his part in a scuffle that resulted in the death of Milford G. Smith, Englewood, Col., youth.

Before Woodcock decided on a personal visit he had received demands for investigation both of the Dierks case and of Vivian's office. He was stirred to action by the allegation that the deputy administrator was promised money by Dierks.

SCORNS $20,000 YEARLY INCOME

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Payments of $20,000 a year are "totally inadequate to support" Mrs. Wanamaker, Jr., it was testified at a hearing on desertion and non-support charges brought by her against her husband.

Wanamaker, son of the late Rodman Wanamaker and grandson of John Wanamaker, in the office of Magistrate Ralph McLaughlin heard a recital of his private finances from the records of the Wanamaker stores and statements by his mother-in-law that he had failed to support his wife properly. Counsel for Mrs. Wanamaker said he had an income of $350,000 a year from interest on his holdings.

Wanamaker was released for a further hearing Tuesday, signing his own bail bond for $1,000. Mrs. Wanamaker, the former Pauline Disston, was unable to attend the hearing because of illness.

ART BALLOTING NEARS CLOSE

Balloting on the most popular painting in the International Exhibition at the Carnegie Institute galleries closes tomorrow. The votes will be counted tomorrow afternoon and a prize of $200 awarded the winner.

All paintings on exhibition this year, with the exception of 11, were eligible. The exhibition closes December 6. This is the eighth year the popular prize has been awarded.

COAL FOR NEEDY DRIVE HALTED

The Fuel Relief Committee working in conjunction with the Helping Hand Association today announced it had suspended its drive for funds until the campaign of the Welfare Fund and the Allegheny County Emergency Association has ended. R. C. Arnold, chairman of the committee, said:

"The fuel relief campaign will be conducted at a later date. In the meantime we wish to cooperate to the fullest extent with the welfare campaign."

The committee operates a coal yard at 201 West General Robinson street for the free distribution of coal to needy families through the various organized charities of the city. Money solicited by the committee is to pay for shipping the coal to the yard from Wildwood. The coal is given free by the Butler Consolidated Coal Company and it is possible to ship a ton to the city yard for 88 cents.

NEEDY FAMILY'S GIFT RETURNED

Although they face the problem of raising more than $2,000,000 over the weekend, Welfare Fund workers have turned back one of the contributions given a volunteer worker. It was on the South Side yesterday and the worker called upon a family living in three rooms of a five-room house. The remainder of the dwelling was shut off to conserve heat. There are six children, the oldest 18, unemployed like the father, a skilled workman. The youngest is a child of 2.

The collector discovered that the family had only the barest of necessities, with but little food in the house and only a week's supply of coal. The members of the household listened carefully to the volunteer worker. Then the wife and mother took a quarter from her bit of change and offered it. It was refused by the collector, who realized that here was a case that really needed the help of the fund.

Two Ministers Ill In North Boroughs

Two North Boroughs ministers were seriously ill today. The Rev. Dr. C. E. Wilbur, 78, pastor emeritus of the Bellevue Methodist Protestant Church, and editor of Sunday school literature of that denomination, was reported in a critical condition in his home, 874 Teece avenue, Bellevue, following cerebral hemorrhage, a month ago.

The Rev. Dr. O. H. Milligan, pastor of the Avalon United Presbyterian Church, was said to be slowly improving from an attack of typhoid fever, the second in 10 years, in his home, 805 Taylor avenue, Avalon.

Girl Takes Poison While On Auto Ride

Anna Kuhar, of Yukon, Pa., was in South Side Hospital today suffering from the effects of poison taken, police said, in a suicide attempt. Mrs. Frances Jesinoski, of 118 Wabash avenue, West End, where the girl is employed as a maid, told police, they said, that she had been talking of taking her life for several days.

The victim was taken to the hospital by a party of three men and two girls with whom she had been riding in an automobile last night.

Two Bandits Attack, Rob Man on Street

Police today were searching for two men who late last night held up and beat John Moriarity, 25, of the King Edward Apartments, at Hoeveler street and Collins avenue. Moriarity was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital where five stitches were taken in his head. He told police that one of the holdup men struck him on the head with a blunt instrument and robbed him of $14.

Bat Pest Baffles Postoffice Hunters

A bat joined the stamp and envelope trade yesterday in the Pittsburgh Postoffice. Flying blindly over the heads of the crowd it found a resting spot somewhere out of sight below the first floor ceiling. Postal employes, who have been seeking a chance to usher it out of the place, where it has been since last Wednesday, found it too elusive.

Water St. Blaze Damages Building

Damage estimated at $2,000 was caused last night when fire raged through a four-story building at West and Water streets, occupied by the Auto Rebuilding Company on the first floor, and the Duquesne Pattern Company on the second floor.

A restaurant in the rear of the building owned by Mrs. Mary Morrison, was damaged by smoke and water. The cause of the fire was unknown.

Man Dies in Rage Protesting Over Tax

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Enraged over a tax notice received several days ago, Otto Hogonson, 70, farmer, died suddenly in the office of the County Assessor yesterday.

Nicaragua Bandit Raid Described

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The looting of Chichigalpa, Nicaragua, by a force of about 80 men was described yesterday by the State Department in a report from Willard J. Beaulac, secretary of the American Legation at Managua.

Beaulac transmitted a statement by President Moncada in which Moncada said the group "mainly Hondurans, entered the city Sunday night and looted a number of business houses." The invaders held the city for three hours, then retreated before loyal troops.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—A Sheriff has pasted a $50,000 writ of attachment on the gate of the John D. Rockefeller, Jr., estate.

It was obtained by Michael Morris, who said he formerly was a Rockefeller chauffeur and that his superior, Roscoe Estelle, asked him to ride with him in a Rockefeller car one day in 1929. During the ride there was an accident and Morris said he was injured so he couldn't be a chauffeur any more.

Rockefeller hasn't been in town recently, so he resorted to attachment rather than personal service in his suit, he said.

Pittsburgh Student Hurt in Collision

YORK, Pa., Nov. 28.—Four persons, two of them Pittsburgh district students at Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, were injured in an automobile crash near Highspire yesterday.

W. G. Rumbaugh, 22, of Pittsburgh, and his brother, S. A. Rumbaugh, 21, of Avonmore, near Pittsburgh, were bruised and cut and were treated by a physician after their car, and one driven by Miss Edith Roberts, 26, Harrisburg, had collided head-on. Miss Roberts also was injured.

Jahncke and Pratt To Ride on Akron

LAKEHURST, N. J., Nov. 28.—(INS.)—Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke and Admiral W. V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, will be passengers on the airship Akron when it goes aloft next Tuesday, Capt. Harry Shoemaker, commander of the naval air station here, announced.

Reds Drop Demonstration Against Gov. Ritchie

BALTIMORE, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Gov. Ritchie has had his first police guard.

For the first time in history a detail of officers accompanied the executive to the University Club last night to guard him against a threatened demonstration by members of a radical organization that failed to develop.

As the Governor reached the club, less than 50 radicals were in the street, but they were silent and no attempt was made to present a list of grievances to the executive.

The sergeant in command of the police talked with the leader of the delegation and advised him to present any paper he might have to the executive during regular business hours.

The group dispersed as the Governar entered the club and were gone long before he emerged after an informal speech.

Representatives of the International Labor Defense League, who had indicated they had a petition for the Governor protesting mob action on the Eastern Shore against Negroes accused of criminal charges, failed to appear.

Marjorie Rambeau's Mate Ridicules Swindle Charge

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Florida police have been requested by District Attorney Tom Whelan to ask Francis A. Gudger, retired Sebring, (Fla.) business man who recently married Marjorie Rambeau, actress, to submit voluntarily his fingerprints for comparison with those of a man who called himself Richard Francois.

Whelan's action was based on a complaint by Alice R. McCalla that she had been swindled out of $1,700 by a man giving his name as Francois. The complainant gave Whelan a picture of Gudger, published in a newspaper here at the time of his marriage to Miss Rambeau. Whelan said Miss McCalla told him the picture was that of Francois.

Whelan said it was likely Gudger had a double. He asked for his fingerprints to clear the case.

Gudger, learning of Whelan's request at his home in Sebring, denied knowing Miss McCalla or Francois and declared he had not been in California this year prior to October. A warrant has been issued for Francois on two counts of grand theft. The woman alleged Francois counted her and departed with $1,700. The alleged offense took place prior to October.

St. Louis $650,000 Below Fund Goal

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The St. Louis community fund was $651,775 short of its $3,000,000 goal last night, the closing night of the campaign. Its leaders decided to continue the drive until the goal is reached.

The amount collected and pledged according to the final report was $2,348,225 contributed by 139,085 individuals.

No. 11 Elks Plan Memorial Dec. 6

Annual memorial services for departed members will be held by Pittsburgh Lodge No. 11, B. P. O. Elks, in its temple, Seventh street and Duquesne way, Sunday night, December 6.

The memorial oration will be delivered by Capt. John Austin, of Corry, Pa., past exalted ruler of Lodge No. 769. Twenty-two members of the Pittsburgh lodge have died in the last year, including County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and City Councilman George J. Kambach.

CHURCH HEADS INDORSE SALE OF SEALS

People of District Urged To Support Campaign; Health Records Show Need

Indorsements from religious leaders have indicated the widespread acceptance of the Christmas Seal sale as the twenty-fifth annual sale got under way, according to officials.

The Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh, and the Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pittsburgh, have called upon the people of the district to support the campaign, which will continue until Christmas Day.

Bishop Boyle said, in part:

"I heartily indorse the sale of Christmas Seals for the purpose of supporting the work of the Tuberculosis League. I wish you great success and, so far as I may, I urge upon the public a continuation of the hearty support which they have given the work by the purchase of Christmas Seals in past year."

Bishop Mann said:

"I am informed that the records of the Health Department of the city show a startling increase in the number of tuberculosis cases, due largely to unemployment and its attendant undernourishment. I am confident that it is only necessary to make this fact known to the generous and public-spirited citizens of Pittsburgh to secure a great increase in the sale of the Christmas Seals."

The Thanksgiving week-end brings a wedding of marked interest, that of Elizabeth Glass Marshall, of Lexington, Ky., and William Manning Swan, son of Mrs. Robert Swan, of Walnut street, East End.

They were married yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the University Chapel, Princeton, N. J., by the Rev. John Hubert Stanton, Princeton, '21, of Scranton, Pa. White chrysanthemums in large brass vases decorated the altar, lighted by cathedral tapers.

The bride wore green velvet with a hat to match and carried feathery white chrysanthemums. Her maid of honor, Sarah MacDonald, of Fitzgerald, Ga., wore orchid velvet with a hat to match and carried orchid chrysanthemums.

Men In Party

Thomas G. Swan was his brother's best man, and Richard J. Swan, of Hartford, Conn., and Robert Swan, Jr., of Pittsburgh, also brothers of the bridegroom, and Frederick H. Bauer, of Rochester, Pa., were ushers.

The bride was given in marriage by Prof. Thomas Jefferson Wertenbaker. The reception was held in the home of the Wertenbaker's, Princeton, the bride's brother-in-law and sister.

Guests from Pittsburgh were Mrs. Robert Swan, Miss Annie Ramsay Swan, of Walnut street, Miss Grace Swan and John Swan, of Shady avenue, and Mrs. Robert Swan, Jr., Aiken avenue. The bride and bridegroom will make their home in Mansfield, Pa.

Christmas plans are in the air and no wonder, what with this Christmas snow flurrying about and only a few weeks in which to do that early shopping. And what I am really leading up to with this holiday chatter, is the annual Christmas sale to be given under the auspices of the Columbia Hospital Auxiliary, on Saturday, December 5, in the Hotel Schenley. The sale will be held from 11 until 5 o'clock. Mrs. Horace Shearer is the general chairman of the affair, and her plans include a great variety of things to be exhibited.

Hospital Benefit

There will be innumerable novelties, toys, needlework, baked goods and so many things that I cannot tell you of them all, you must go and see for yourself.

Miss Dorothy Scott is president of the Auxiliary and Mrs. James Gilmore, corresponding secretary, and Miss Agnes Brown, treasurer.

Mary Nolan's Debt Troubles Increase

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—(AP)—More court troubles over debts have bobbed up for Mary Nolan, motion picture actress. Two warrants for her arrest were ordered by Referee N. I. Milville when she did not appear before him for examination as a judgment debtor.

The records showed a judgment against the actress for $695 in favor of Simon Lewald, for clothing purchased in Munich, Germany, two years ago. A second judgment is held by Venno Stimank for $1,850 for house furnishings.

URGES WOMEN'S WAGES RAISED

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP)—Shorter hours and better pay for women were advocated by Miss Mary Anderson as an investment for national prosperity.

The chief of the Federal Women's Bureau asserted that if all unemployed could buy what they need to maintain the American living standard, the danger of industrial depressions would vanish.

She addressed an American Woman's Association conference on "The Trained Woman and the Economic Crisis," saying:

"Wages have been reduced more than cost of living in the past two years. Since 1929, while cost of living has declined 12 per cent, the income of factory workers, not including salaried employes, has gone down 37 per cent."

She said she had received evidence that "some employers during the recent depression have been working women 12, 13 and 14 hours, with no extra pay."

DESIGNER PRESENTS NEWEST MODE IN WEDDING COSTUMES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—Not always is it easy to accord our ultra-modern surroundings with frocks that have borrowed generously from the modes of the past. Of course those who like to look quaint don't mind in the least wearing clothes that are sartorial anachronism in an age where all is paced to a hectic and swift modernity, where the last word is not of today even but of tomorrow. But there is one costume and occasion where the past is not out of place and that is of course the wedding costume. For surely the surroundings and the beauty of the church is an ideal setting for a wedding gown of old-world inspiration and for bridesmaids dressed in quaint old-fashioned costumes. Such costuming cannot fail to add to the solemn grandeur of the occasion and can only add to the beauty of the bride and her entourage. Surely the old-world frock is more beautiful for a wedding than a dress that has left all traditions behind in a foolish effort to be different or ultra-smart or even bizarre. Do not scorn tradition, for it has a hallowed beauty.

* * *

WE PRESENT today a drawing of a wedding gown that is most interesting for many reasons. First of all it represents the charm of the modes of the late eighteen eighties at their best. Secondly, it was made by one of the greatest of all couturiers for his own daughter's wedding which took place in October at the fashionable Church of St. Honore d'Eylau. The contracting parties were Mlle. Helen Worth and Mr. Jean Stanislas Iscovesco.

* * *

THIRTY YARDS of white crepe satin was used for the flounced frock and the long puffed train. The tulle veil was held by a coronet of artificial orange blossoms and the floral muff was of these same flowers. Five small cousins of the bride served as attendants and were full-skirted frocks of pale pink organdie with close bodices in pink silk faille trimmed with soutache braid. The tiers of the long skirts were edged with faille and this material was also used for the odd little round hats. The muffs were of pink chiffon and small roses.

A fashionable location, an unusually excellent cuisine, the service, all these things the LOMBARDY has to offer. But it has something more. Its rooms, its suites are better planned, larger, lighter, more private than you are likely to find in other Park Avenue hotels ... and it goes without saying they are furnished luxuriously and tastefully. And remember that the LOMBARDY enjoys all the advantages of a convenient location, plus the quiet of a few steps off Park Avenue silence.

All In A Day

UP IN CORNELL University, some years back, two boys and a girl formed a grand co-operation. The three of them had designs on Broadway, and they also felt that they were destined for big things in the theatre. They met at regular intervals and discussed the stage from various angles. They panned the actors and hailed great plays.

The girl, of course, was going to become an actress. One of the boys was sincerely convinced that, when he was established as a director, they wouldn't allow John Barrymore in the same theatre with him. WILL ROGERS SAYS

ABOARD S. S. EMPRESS OF RUSSIA, Nov. 28.—

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

You know I told you we was going to lose a day for no other reason than to make somebody's calendar come out even. Well, we lost the day; we gained a typhoon; we lost a lifeboat and I lost my whole internal possessions. An old Oklahoma prairie product has no business on this ocean when its washing away lifeboats. Brother, you got quite a spring freshet. Gibbons was brokenhearted when we got through it alive, for it spoiled a good story for him. I already found out enough on this trip to warrant coming and that is if Amerika will stay home and take care of our own business we need never fear Japan if she has to cross this ocean to get to us. If we can't lick a seasick soldier then we deserve to lose. Yours,

France Desires Peace With Her Notes Honored

—By ARTHUR BUGS BAER—

Having grabbed peace with honor, France now wants another peace with her notes honored.

She is asking for payment of war reparations and forcing England to tune in on the broadcast.

That makes moratoriums and disarmament look like a couple of jumping checkers.

We didn't know what softboiled guff was handed to Mr. Hoover, but we do know that France will not disarm. The minute Premier Laval got back to Paris he started laughing and that's a nice way to insult the White House snoots.

If you owe notes to France you've got to pay it the same way a hog wears a ring. Through the nose.

Meanwhile, Uncle Sam has resigned the diplomatic Boy Scouts and is doing a good international deed a day. He's been hoisted around like a cowboy at a rodeo.

We'll soon need another plaster cast in the Smithsonian Institute for the bags we're held in the last 10 years.

All Girls

Evelyn Brent is the comforter in this scene from "The Mad Parade," opening today on the screen of the Harris.

Little Jackie Makes 'Em Weep

BY GEORGE SEIBEL

One scene in "The Champ," in which ... Jackie Cooper and ... Wallace Beery play together, can be recommended to actors who wish to learn the secret of pathos without becoming maudlin. It is the scene in which the huge prize-fighter, with the brain of a child, is in prison and his boy is brought to him. He has made up his mind that he will send Dink to the boy's mother but Dink does not want to go.

The clinging affection the pitiful appeals to be allowed to stay, reposed in Jackie's face, represent as high a climax of pathos as the pictures have ever reached. Jackie made 'em all weep.

This picture, at the Penn, is above the average in most things. It does not even try to make any sort of a hero out of the boy's father. He is just an ignorant, half-witted brute with an unreasoning affection for his son.

THE PRIZE FIGHT

Wallace Beery plays this part so well that no one thinks of his ads of fat, which would keep him out of the prize ring except in Hollywood. There it is easy for him to go four or five rounds and knock out a muscular Mexican by the sheer force of father love, while little Jackie is watching by the ringside—more good acting!

Infant phenomena usually slip up somewhere and show the infant under the phenomenon. Jackie never does in "The Champ."

The scene where he undresses with the help of his mother is another high light in a well-acted picture with a strong appeal to parental emotion.

It is even a relief to have no sickening love scenes gumming the screen.

THREE GOOD PLAYERS

Jackie Cooper, Wallace Beery and Irene Rich are three good players, who make this picture an outstanding event. But it has much humor, some good characterization and convincing realism to commend it further.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

For the first time since his dethronement in 1918, the former German Emperor and ex-Kaiser William II has posed for motion pictures. Brief glimpses of the former Kaiser have been secured in the past, but this is the first time that he permitted the cameramen to ... the ... Doorn.

Everybody seems to have the football craze. There was a hot game between two colored teams representing Booker T. High and St. Joseph's High at Norfolk, Va. The side lines furnished the greatest entertainment. One section was packed with female enthusiasts and the cheer leader urges the players on to provide as great a show as has ever been staged in Harlem. School songs are sung in jazz time and seem to have the desired effect upon the players.

Plays, Players and By-Play

—By WILLIAM J. LEWIS—

Mamie Kennedy and Otto Kruger will have no legitimate dramatic competition when they appear next week in the Nixon in the Noel Coward comedy, "Private Lives," which is to be the only ... play in town for six nights and a ... matinee. The b. o. is now box-office-ing for it.

Small Timer says it is a poorer rule that won't work even one way.

At ... of the year, come Monday and one may ... up for that durable quartette, "Blossom Time," the next attraction in the Alvin which will be shut all next week with the exception of the seating department. On the usual days there'll be matinees.

Small Timer says that when orators refer to every American woman as a queen he has royalty wedded to a lot of deuces.

The gals have it all their own way on the Harris screen for the new week that begins today by the film calendar. It has a boyless picture, "The Mad Parade," which takes only femmes to war. Irene Rich, Evelyn Brent and Louise Fazenda are in it.

Small Timer says a lot of the men who used to think they could set the world on fire have found out they aren't so hot.

TRUCK OWNERS AIDED BY COST CHECK DAILY

Branch Manager Declares Mileage Tests of Little Value in Finding Costs

A saving of only a cent a mile through economy in gasoline and oil and lower replacement and service charges will run into considerable money in the course of a year, declares R. J. Mungovan, manager of the International Harvester motor truck branch in Pittsburgh. The merchant and manufacturer therefore carefully checks his motor truck operating costs to find out which make and type of truck he can operate with greatest economy. To make it easy for motor truck owners to make these checks, the International Harvester Company is providing a handy means of keeping a daily record in the form of a printed blank for drivers to fill in and a book for transferring daily costs on monthly sheets.

No great amount of time or work is involved in keeping an accurate record of costs on one truck or a fleet of trucks. These operating cost blanks and books are supplied free to truck owners whether or not they operate Internationals.

ACCURATE DATA NEEDED

In discussing the needs of operating records, Mr. Mungovan declared that occasional tests for mileage are of little value in determining actual truck operating costs. An accurate day-by-day record of gasoline, oil and repairs compiled into a summary of total costs for the year is absolutely necessary for a definite knowledge of total operation costs.

Economy in operation is a feature that is not visible to the purchaser of a truck. It is another factor that he may or may not get when he invests in new motor trucks. It has to be built into the truck by the manufacturer and the purchaser of trucks can only find it out through the keeping of accurate cost records.

STEEL OUTPUT SAGS LITTLE IN WEEK

Chicago District Operations 8% Below Pittsburgh; No Price Change Expected

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel production in general showed a little sagging tendency this week, but the rate may be estimated the same as for three preceding weeks, 29 per cent. The November average may be set at about 29 per cent, against 27¾ per cent shown for October, and with the December decrease now in prospect the quarter should average around 28 per cent, against 31 per cent for third quarter.

After a three weeks' run on an accumulation of rail releases the local rail mill has switched to sheet bars in line with the announcement that McKeesport Tin Plate Company will run full for several weeks beginning midnight tomorrow. Pittsburgh district steel production as a whole has continued at about 30 per cent, the Chicago district being at 22 per cent.

ORDERS DECLINING

In general, the flow of steel orders has diminished a trifle in the last week or ten days and the prospect is for slightly diminishing steel production to the end of the year, but with a hate possibility that demand from the automobile industry may increase sufficiently to offset.

Announcements of first quarter prices on finished steel products are expected next week and are unlikely to show any change except for a more or less probable advance in nails, partly to reinforce the last advance which has held perfectly but with little buying as jobbers were stocked.

BANK AID LACKING

Improved trade sentiment reported after announcement of the bank aid plan October 7 is still said to be in evidence but it has not resulted in materially heavier steel buying, possibly because the time of the year was unpropitious. A similar negative showing is made by freight car loadings, which had their usual seasonal decline in the first two weeks of November whereas there had previously been scarcely any of the usual seasonal increase.

The steel trade feels that the bank position has been very greatly improved and that henceforth suspensions will be relatively insignificant, but it does not observe any important change in the attitude of bankers themselves as to extending financial accommodations to those who might be buyers of steel. While stocks of steel in buyers' hands have been reported extremely low for many weeks there are indications that there will be some further curtailments against January 1 inventories on account of the banking attitude. As scarcely any line pipe projects were financed this season through bankers there is a chance of more being done next year, there being many natural gas and gasoline projects quite promising from the engineering and economic viewpoint. The moderately heavy line pipe production this year has been almost entirely for buyers who could finance their projects themselves.

For the eighth successive week fabricated structural steel lettings have made a poor showing, explained only in part by the time of year, which will be a greater factor until after January 1, when there may be a marked increase as many projects are being considered.

LAKE SHIPPING OFF

At intervals for two months much heavier buying by the automobile industry has been predicted, and such predictions are current now.

Tin plate has departed from its tradition of doing nearly as well in a depression as at other times, 1921 having been so far the only exception.

Shipments of Lake Superior iron ore down the lakes in the season just closed totaled 23,467,786 tons, as against 46,582,982 tons last year and 65,204,600 tons in 1929, the record year for shipments by lake. There was an excess last year as late in the year, pig iron production was lighter than anticipated.

SPRING TRADE GAIN SEEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Some slackening of the rate of bank credit contraction, slowing up of currency expansion and bank reserve strengthening of the dollar and mark exchanges, stereotyped action on German reparations and debt problems by the creditor powers may be counted as condiments for the rather thin Thanksgiving turkey offered in this week's news, reports the Business Week. All these things offer some promise that the period of acute financial disturbance which has complicated the depression will not be unduly prolonged and may be definitely passed by spring.

The postponement of railroad wage adjustments, pressure of tax selling and poor corporation earnings reports have provided an unpalatable goblet since for the security markets, but they are standing their disappointments so far fairly well and commodity markets continue steady despite the dampening of their earlier inflationary enthusiasm. Meanwhile most measures of industrial and trade activity indicate nothing more than stabilization at prevailing low levels as business prepares to dig in for the winter and watch the coming congressional carnival of political winter sports in Washington.

Steel and motors appear most hopeful in keeping some of the home fires burning in anticipation of spring movement, and there is no doubt that sentimental expectation of a fresh start after the turn of the year has strengthened in many lines of business.

Credit Corporation Seen As Business Aid

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE FORMATION OF THE National Credit Corporation has been the most important step toward returning business and financial conditions to normal, John A. Beattie, president of John A. Beattie & Co., investment bankers, declares in an article in Keystone Topics, the official magazine of the Keystone Athletic Club.

In restoring public confidence in the banking system, Mr. Beattie believes that the way has been paved for general business recovery. He declares, however, that the climb from depression will not be sudden but can be accomplished only by an orderly series of corrective steps.

The lack of faith in banks has been a major contributing influence to the decline in securities, according to Mr. Beattie. The banks were compelled to place themselves in an abnormally liquid position. A peculiar money condition developed. Banks were forced to accumulate liquid assets and money and, to preserve their existence, were unable to use these funds to fulfill their normal functions.

Banks Sell Securities

THE BANKS BECAME SELLERS in the security market in place of their previous position of being the largest buyers of securities, Mr. Beattie declares that this was one of the reasons for the continuous decline in security values over the last two years.

Because the banks were afraid to undermine their cash position by loans to local industries it had the nation-wide effect of reducing business activities, and a continuation of this same bank necessity will no doubt prove one of the principal reasons for business recovery being delayed.

Mr. Beattie states that the National Credit Corporation provides a basis for the restoration of public confidence. Both banks and depositors will be freed from what has been a prevailing apprehension. When people know that banks can pay all depositors on request there will be a decline in withdrawals.

Hope for Security Revival

IN SUMMARIZING THE EFFECTS of the improvement in banking conditions Mr. Beattie says:

"By projecting our analysis a little further into the possible effects from the formation of the National Credit Corporation, it would seem that even more important benefits are to be derived both for business and finance. With the restoration of public confidence and the elimination of the danger of runs or heavy withdrawals, the banks can once more resume their normal functions. The removal of the past necessity of maintaining an excessively liquid position will release funds that can be loaned to local business. Credit can then be offered for production to the manufacturer and credit can then be extended for the requirements of the merchant. This should prove a gradual stimulus to business of all kinds.

"And, as banks discontinue the liquidation of their security lists, they will cease to be sellers and therefore, no longer be depressors of security market prices. As public confidence continues, we no doubt will see our banks once more assume their former position as large buyers of securities. Thus, a more hopeful aspect exists at the moment for the future recovery of security values than has existed over the past two years."

HOLIDAY SALES PICKING UP

While there has been some improvement in business sentiment, recently continued high temperatures have interfered with the movement of seasonal merchandise, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review. Jobbers and retailers have been trading in materially less than the normal volume of business in men's and women's wearing apparel.

There has been a fair movement of holiday merchandise, particularly of the cheaper grade. Demand for automobiles is estimated at about 30 per cent to 40 per cent below normal, but there is a fairly good demand for accessories and replacement parts. The cheaper radio sets continue to move in fair volume.

Radiator and heating equipment also sanitary supplies are still moving slowly and demand for electrical equipment has fallen off to some extent. The production of bituminous coal continues at a low rate with demand slow.

Collections continue to average slow, although some retailers report a slight improvement lately.

GLASS DEMAND SLOWS UP

Some recessions in demand for flat glass are noted as the year approaches its end and inventory-taking time comes nearer, according to American Glass Review. It is not improbable that the demand of October and early November has reached its height and that requisitions upon manufacturers will become less as 1932 looms closer.

Plate glass is in a better situation than other forms of flat glass. The great market for plate glass is the automobile manufacturing industry and this is most active in the first four months of the year. Reports from Detroit indicate that automobile makers look for a 20 per cent increase in output next year compared with 1931.

The decline in demand for plate glass for automobile manufacturers is indicated by the October production which was a little more than 4,500,000 square feet but less than 80,000 square feet below September's total. It is not unlikely that production of plate glass in the final quarter will be under 12,000,000 square feet or only a little more than could be produced in one month. The 1931 total production will be under 85,000,000 square feet or about 25,000,000 under 1930 and about 45,000,000 under the best year.

Further Tin Output Curb Is Conditional

KUALA LUMPUR, Nov. 28.—Acceptance by the Federated Malay States of the increased tin curtailment, amounting to 15,000 tons annually, is conditional on its operating rate not being brought below 40 per cent. Federated Malay States reduced their output in September to 40 per cent from the 60 per cent rate at which other producing countries were operating. This was because the Federated Malay States had produced in three months ended September 1, 4,700 tons more than its quota.

TRADE LEADERS RELUCTANT TO CUT WAGES

Many Executives Holding To Old Scale as Means Of Bringing Prospects

BY MERRILL E. EKEYSER

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.

M. Ekeyser

EIGHT WAGE CUTS

"Every effort will be made to keep all of the present staff employed as long as possible. This will be done by finding work within the company by spreading work through shortening the working time by arranging for some vacations during the winter by employing no new help where at all possible to fill vacancies by transfer even over a considerable distance.

POLICY UNLIGHENING.

"We want if possible to weather this storm and be able to say that we were among the corporations that did not cut the wage scale. But no sane management can come through times like these when low prices have seriously reduced income without considering reduction of wages as one possible means to effect necessary reduction in cost of operations. The situation may force us eventually to resort to that extreme measure. But I want to say that if we come to that it will be under the force of necessity and every one of us will share in the sacrifice to be made.

ASK RECEIVER FOR STORES

DEFENDS LOAN TO TENNESSEE

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. Frank K. Houston, first vice president of the Chemical National Bank, commenting on the recent short-term loan of $5,000,000 to the state of Tennessee, declared that financiers generally looked upon the state's credit as among the best.

He said:

"The recent visit of Tennessee officials to New York to arrange for a short-term loan to meet a maturity falling due December 1 caused some irresponsible talk about that state's credit. There was never any question about negotiating the loan, and it is expected that the special meeting of the Legislature called for next week will pass measures to balance the budget, and new loans can be made at a lower rate of interest."

Stating that the recent $5,000,000 loan made by a syndicate headed by the Chemical National was for six months only and consequently a 6 per cent rate was necessary, the banker said:

"This seemingly high interest was not because the state of Tennessee is not sound in every way. Short-term loans right now must carry a little higher rate than usual.

"Tennessee has a bonded indebtedness of around $85,000,000. All of this debt, however, except $17,000,000 which is a direct obligation of the state, is adequately taken care of by a gasoline tax of six cents a gallon, a sales tax and toll bridge fees. It can all be paid off in 20 years."

LOANS DECLINE $24,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve Member banks in New York City decreased $24,000,000 during the week ended November 25, to $3,531,000,000. This is a decrease of $1,000,000 as compared with $725,000,000 in the previous week, and the record high of $8,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

European Confidence in Dollar Restored. Gold Imports Indicate

Various interpretations have been placed on the gold imports into this country thus far this month, but the one most often heard is that the return of gold can be viewed as an indication of the restoration of European confidence in the American dollar. This is considered a constructive development. Predictions have been heard recently that the gold importations will increase in the coming months with the United States getting back a good percentage of the precious metal shipped from these shores after England went off the gold standard.

Notwithstanding relatively good earnings in the year ended September 20, when Walgreen Company had net profit of $2,045,411, or $2.05 a common share, directors have no intention of placing the common stock on a dividend paying basis for some time to come. Although earnings have been relatively stable over the past few years, the management intends to strengthen its surplus position further and, also, to await more proof of stability of earnings before committing the company to a common dividend policy. As of September 30, last, earned surplus amounted to $3,932,565, against $3,002,395 a year ago.

First National Stores has been doing somewhat better than other companies in the grocery line. For the third quarter $1.35 a share was earned, compared with $1.20 a year ago. There was a moderate reduction in the dollar sales during the period, reflecting the lower prices which now prevail for many products. The fact that the per share earnings increased is indicative of a large volume in tonnage as well as economies and efficiency in operations. The company for the first half of its fiscal year earned in excess of its $2.50 annual dividend needs.

International Silver has met profit-taking during the recent reactionary trend, but the stock has reached levels at which some of the original buyers are replacing the lines they disposed of during the sharp advance when silver metal was moving ahead. It is stated in responsible quarters that the earnings indications are for an operating loss in the first six to eight months this year, but considerable improvement is anticipated in the final three or four months of 1931.

Because of the low price at which General Railway Signal has been selling there were intimations in speculative circles a few weeks ago that the dividend would be reduced. However, directors this week declared the regular $1.25 quarterly disbursement. Incidentally it was announced that the volume of business on hand at present is in excess of amount at this time last year. Interests in the company believe additional orders are in sight in connection with the economies which are planned by various railroads for the future.

Switching from other issues in the same price class into General Motors has been reported recently. There are many pessimists on the stock, but the fact remains that a speculative and outside demand has been in evidence at times during recent reactions. This buying was based on the theory that there will be a demonstration in the motor stocks in connection with the various models and its diversification in other lines will be the logical leader.

GRAIN PIT GOSSIP

CHICAGO, Nov. 28. Wheat harvesting has become general in Australia except in Victoria, and the bulk of the new wheat received was of excellent quality. The Australian crop was estimated at 160,000,000 bushels, compared with 213,000,000 bushels last year.

Recent rains in Argentina were unfavorable but harvesting was now progressing. First reports of yields were good and the quality was satisfactory.

Russia cleared only 448,000 bushels of wheat for the week, against 2,768,000 last week, while total exports from the Black Sea were 2,488,000 or 1,128,000 less than the previous week.

Foreign financial conditions are regarded by wheat traders as the dominating influence at the present time.

England generally takes about 35 to 40 per cent of all European requirements of wheat and flour, traders said, and the poor financial condition there prevented buying ahead liberally, which is bound to bring about extra depressed conditions.

EARLY LOSSES IN STOCKS REGAINED

Steel Shows ½ Point Gain; Trading Turns Dull on Advance; P.R.R. Moves Up

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 — (AP)—The stock market stiffened in the early trading today, after an opening flurry of selling had been absorbed.

Most of the early loss was regained by the end of the first half hour, and trading turned dull. United States Steel after opening unchanged rose ½ point. Allied Chemical was firm from the first rising 3.

Case rose a point as did McKeesport Tinplate. American Telephone after slipping slightly sold up to show a gain of nearly a point. Pennsylvania Railroad converted an early loss of ½ into a gain of like extent. Consolidated Gas virtually regained a 1-point decline. Radio sold off ½ to a new low at 8 then recovered partially.

Although Wall street's immediate attention was on the stock market because of the proximity to the October 5 lows, banking circles expressed gratification over further evidence that hoarded money is being released. Currency circulation rose $8,000,000 in the week ended November 25 but that gain was much less than the seasonal advance which normally continues until after the Christmas holidays. In the same week of 1930 circulation advanced $81,000,000, while the rise in 1929 was $80,000,000.

Weakness in the bond market as well as in the commodities, brokers point out, has added to the pessimism which has been forcing stocks lower although it is suggested the markets are now tied so closely that they move sympathetically. Nevertheless, many brokers see a strong bond list must precede a sustained improvement in stocks.

New York banks are said to have agreed on the terms for extension of further private credits to Germany. The outstanding credits appear to have been reduced substantially, nevertheless some of the repayment may be borrowed back before the standstill agreement expires on February 29.

Sterling began the day heavy, cables opening at $4.83, off 1½ cents.

RETAIL SALES IMPROVED

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 — (AP)—Retail sales improved slightly during the past week as a result of more seasonal weather during the latter part of the week, according to the weekly survey by the Fairchild Publications. November sales, however, are below November 1930.

Unseasonable weather conditions retarded sales of heavyweight merchandise during most of the month, especially from November 10 to 25. Sales for the first 12 days in the Metropolitan New York area for November showed a decrease of only 4.8 per cent as compared with the corresponding period in 1930. The decline since that period has been greater.

The improvement in weather conditions stimulated sales of heavyweight merchandise during the latter part of the week. Special sales are also being held in most sections of the country to stimulate demand. Retail prices are still tending downward.

Ill Health Forces Banker to Resign

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. Ernest Stauffen, Jr., has resigned as chairman of Marine Midland Trust Company of New York. Mr. Stauffen has been on a leave of absence for some months due to ill health and he has felt it necessary to resign from active business until his health is fully restored. He will remain a director of Marine Midland Corporation and Marine Midland Trust Company.

Telephone Firms Report Profit Up

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. Reports of 105 telephone companies to the Interstate Commerce Commission show September operating income of $23,146,032 compared with $23,000,585 in September, 1930, and for nine months, $208,159,263, against $202,695,966 a year ago.

Production of Zinc Below Consumption

PARIS, Nov. 28. At a meeting of the Zinc cartel in Brussels, only minor matters were discussed, but it was revealed that there has been a fair-sized reduction in stocks, indicating that production has been finally lowered to a point below consumption.

OHIO NORTHERN NEW PANTHER OPENER

THE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE of the University of Pittsburgh for next year has been lengthened to 10 games by the booking of a new opener to precede the lists of contests already announced. Instead of waiting until Saturday, October 1, to inaugurate the campaign with the West Virginia tilt at Morgantown, as originally planned, the Panthers will pry off the lid at the Stadium one week earlier. It is learned from Ada, O., that Ohio Northern University, of that place, has been booked by W. Don Harrison, director of athletics at Pitt, to meet the Sutherlands in the curtain raiser here on Saturday, September 24.

W. Don Harrison

This means two radical departures in the Pitt schedule. The first was disclosed when the original draft of the 1932 slate was announced, this being the booking of the Carnegie Tech game for the Saturday before Thanksgiving Day. The Panthers have always left that date open to rest up for the holiday contest, but under the new arrangement they will have to play two games in six days. The crowding was necessary to take advantage of the late opportunity to schedule a meeting with Penn.

THE SECOND DEPARTURE is that the Blue and Gold will play 10 games. Except for the specially arranged trips to the Coast for two engagements with Stanford after the seasons of 1922 and 1927 and one with Southern California following the 1929 campaign, the Pitt custom for 23 years has been to restrict the regular schedule to nine contests.

From 1904 to 1908, inclusive, the local university scheduled a minimum of 10 games, and in 1905 and 1908 the total was raised to 11, but since 1908 the limit has been nine. The coming of Ohio Northern for the lid-lifter next fall means that the game with Duquesne will be the second home event for the Panthers instead of the local Pitt opener.

THE GAME WITH the Ada team was arranged at the request of Coach Sutherland, who feared that to start off with West Virginia and follow up with the Dukes would be too tough a proposition for the Panthers without a warm-up number.

This will be the first time since 1913 that Pitt has met Ohio Northern in football. From 1907 to 1913, inclusive, the teams played annually, except for a single interruption in 1908.

PITT'S COMPLETED SCHEDULE for 1932 shows six games at home with Ohio Northern, Duquesne, North Carolina State, Notre Dame, Carnegie Tech and Penn State, and four abroad with West Virginia, Army, Penn and Nebraska. The slate as finally arranged follows: September 24, Ohio Northern at the Stadium; October 1, West Virginia at Morgantown; October 8, Duquesne at the Stadium; October 15, Army at New York; October 22, North Carolina State at the Stadium; October 29, Notre Dame at the Stadium; November 5, Penn at Philadelphia; November 12, Nebraska at Lincoln; November 19, Carnegie Tech at the Stadium; November 24 (Thanksgiving Day), Penn State at the Stadium.

THE PIRATES ARE to present the novel feature of a father and son on a major league baseball club at the same time, adding another instance to a list that has included few such family representations in the big show beyond the Macks with the A's, the Walshes with the White Sox and the Burketts with the Giants. None of the other sons made good.

Otis Crandall

James M. Crandall, son of Otis, the Buccaneer coach, has been signed by the Pittsburgh club. He is a student at a California university. As was his father, the youngster is a pitcher, and a right-hander, and under his dad's coaching he has made such an impressive showing on the slab for his college team that his services have been sought by several major league clubs.

THE YOUNGER CRANDALL is an all-around athlete and the football coaches at his school have tried to persuade him to come out for the eleven, but Otis has vetoed the grid game, fearing that an injury might interfere with the boy's baseball career.

Pitcher Crandall's name appears on the list of players reserved for next year by the Pittsburgh club. The annual filing of these lists by the major league clubs shows a total of 573 players reserved, 288 in the American and 285 in the National. Only the Yankees have reserved the full limit of 40 men. Brooklyn leads the National with 38. The Browns, with 29, have the smallest roster in either loop. The only managers reserved as players are Rogers Hornsby and Lew Fonseca.

PITTSBURGH'S ROSTER AT present is made up of 37 players, not including Joe Dawson, ineligible, and Howard Lohr and Jimmy Mattox, voluntarily retired. There are six catchers, 15 pitchers, eight infielders and eight outfielders, as follows: Catchers—Eddie Phillips, Earl Grace, Hal Finney, Bill Brenzell, Dallas Warren and Bill Steinecke. Pitchers—Remy Kremer, Heinie Meine, Ervin Brame, Larry French, Glenn Spencer, Bill Harris, Charley Wood, Steve Swetonic, Leon Chagnon, Bob Osborn, Vernon Kennedy, George Grant, Jame Bivin, James Crandall and John Nigeling. Infielders—Harold Traynor, Gus Suhr, George Grantham, Tommy Thevenow, Howard Groskloss, Tony Piet, Ben Sankey and Floyd Young. Outfielders—Paul Waner, Lloyd Waner, Adam Comorosky, Forrest Jensen, James Mosolf, Augustin Dugas, Dave Barbee and Stanley Schino.

JOE DEVINE may safely be added to the long list of wrong guesses in connection with the Pirate managership. His visit here is merely a social one and there isn't a chance of his being named to succeed Jewel Ens.

At that, President Dreyfuss did intimate today that he had made some further progress toward the selection of a pilot. A few days ago he said he had reduced the number of possibilities to "five or six." Today he said it was "three or four."

THE FIRST PITTSBURGH football player to be honored as an all-America choice this year is Ralph Daugherty, of the Panthers. He is picked as center on the team selected by the New York "Evening Sun." Bill Morton, of Dartmouth, is named quarterback over Barry Wood, Schwartz, Rentner, Pinckert, Munn and Pyles are among the other selections.

Two of Pitt's nine all-America players in the past also were centers—Bob Peck in 1915-16 and Herb Stein in 1920, both Walter Camp choices.

Primo Carnera

THE DREADNAUGHT CHAMPIONSHIP won by Primo Carnera last night may not mean much, but in knocking out Victorio Campolo so early as the second round the vast Venetian must be said to have turned in the most impressive job he has done since coming to this country. Carnera had figured to win over an opponent who had been beaten by Johnny Risko, Phil Scott, Tommy Loughran and Ernie Schaaf, but he exceeded expectations in stopping the Argentine beanpole in such short order. In quitting the pushover racket and going after good men he took the right course to improve himself, and evidently he's coming along at a clip that will eventually earn him another chance against one of the topliners in the heavyweight championship circle.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 28.—Two football teams with records very much alike, and nothing to boast of either, clash here today in the Island Stadium, renewing a gridiron rivalry that had its inception back in 1891 and has witnessed no less than 29 battles to date. The elevens are the varsities of Wash-Jeff and West Virginia.

The Presidents hold an edge in the matter of victories, having landed on top 18 times. There have been four ties. Today, however, the contest appears to be a toss-up. If there is any edge to be given, it must be accorded Wash-Jeff. The Presidents have a slightly better record for the present campaign than do the Mountaineers, having beaten Tech, Western Reserve, West Virginia Wesleyan and Western Maryland, against West Virginia's victories over Duquesne, Wash-Lee, Wesleyan and Penn State. West Virginia has been beaten by Pitt, Georgetown, Kansas State, Fordham and Detroit.

NEALE WANTS WIN

It was not so many years ago that Greasy Neale, the present coach at West Virginia and about as colorful a mentor as there is in the land, was handling the reins at Wash-Jeff. Before the present campaign got under way, Coach Greasy looked over his 10-game schedule and announced that his ball club would win seven games. Mister Neale was offside on the crack, for unless the Mountaineers cop today they'll wind up with a percentage of .400. A win today gives 'em an even break. And how he'd like to knock off the Jeffers!

Wash-Jeff's season has been just as disappointing. The Presidents had hopes of galloping through undefeated, but after winning over West Virginia Wesleyan, Carnegie Tech and Western Maryland, the Red and Black cracked wide open and were socked down by Temple, Bucknell, Marquette and Lafayette.

Both elevens came through with triumphs last week. Penn State bowing before the Mountaineers and Western Reserve before the Presidents. The contests both were in the nature of pushovers.

The rival coaches, Bill Amos, of Wash-Jeff, and Neale, have about decided on their starting lineups. The West Virginians figure to go with Karr and Sortet at the terminals, Ike Lewis and Schweitzer at the tackles, Brown and Anderson at the guards, Schwartzwalder at center, Marker at quarter, Capt. Johnny Doyle and Drobeck at the halves and Dotson in at fullback.

For Washington and Jefferson, Ken McNeil and Johnson look to be sure shots at the ends, Rhodes and Charley Armstrong at the tackles, Johnny Fife and George Demas at the guards, Pat Rigney at center and Shaffer, Deacle, Rosso and Demedowitz in the backfield.

EXPECT GOOD CROWD

Despite the cold weather and the possibility of snow, a good sized turnout is expected. The Island Stadium here will hold about 18,000, and Graduate Managers Theurer and Stansbury are anticipating putting away a crowd of at least 15,000.

Ten members of the Wash-Jeff cast and six Mountaineers are completing their varsity careers as footballers today. The departing prexies include Stu Wilson, McNeil, Rigney, Demas, Morky Armstrong, Kaiser, Kelly, Butler, Gardner and Updegraff. West Virginia loses Capt. Doyle, Sebulsky, Lewis, Brown, Hamilton and Beall.

Charity Game Shows Deficit Of $21,000

BOSTON, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Mayor James M. Curley has been informed that the Boston College-Holy Cross football game, played at the Harvard Stadium Thursday, for Boston's unemployed, had resulted in a deficit of $21,000. A report on gross receipts of $75,000 was made by the Harvard A. A., which supervised the tickets.

Expenses of the game included, Mayor Curley said, guarantees of $30,000 each to the two teams; $15,000 to the Boston Red Sox for rental of Fenway Park, where the game was to have been played originally; $3,000 for operating the Stadium, and $18,000 for printing, officials and advertising and incidentals, a total of $96,000.

Under the arrangements, the teams were to receive the proceeds from 32,000 tickets sold, which was the average attendance at the games during the past 10 years.

YESTERDAY'S CARTOONS SELF-EXPLANATORY. TOMORROW—A MODERN CRUSOE.

JONES FAVORS ELIS, IRISH

By TAD JONES
Former Yale Coach

New York today will have its first look at the Notre Dame team in what is always a very colorful game—that with the Army. If scores would tell a true story then the game would be a one-sided affair, for Notre Dame defeated Pitt and Pitt in turn handed Army its worst defeat in years.

Regardless of preliminary season records however, the Notre Dame-Army affair is always a mighty close game. There have been times when a one-sided score resulted, and this may result this year. Notre Dame fretting under the defeat by U. S. C. may not be satisfied with just a victory. There can be little doubt as to the outcome, but Army teams are always dangerous and this one is powerful as well, and will have full strength to send against the invaders. Notre Dame is favored to win.

One of the most interesting games of the Eastern season will be played at the Harvard Stadium by Dartmouth and Stanford. No champions are involved, but a great game of football is promised. Stanford appears the likely winner, but only if the Morton-McCall combination can be solved. The Westerners should have the better balanced attack.

YALE RULES FAVORITE

Yale and Princeton meet in the final game of the season for these old rivals. Many years have passed since Yale has closed the schedule with Princeton instead of Harvard, and this year because of Princeton's record, many people will look upon the game as an anti-climax. Yale hardly can have forgotten the stirring finish of the last struggle with the Tiger, and the Elis are not likely to take the game lightly.

The Princeton team is big and rugged and will be a match for Yale in power. Their backs are big and fast also, and have proved it. At the moment the team begins to function as a team the Tiger will prove a dangerous op-

All-America Grid Board On Air Tomorrow Night

Football and radio readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph are invited to pull up close to the old radio tomorrow night, tune in on Station KDKA at 10:15 and settle back for the niftiest 39-minute football program of the year.

With Graham McNamee at the microphone, the eighth annual all-America dinner, given by Christy Walsh, will get under way at the New York Athletic Club. Members of the all-America board and famous football coaches and authorities from all sections will be present and will be heard on the air in a series of football questions and answers.

The headliners will include A. A. Stagg, Chicago; J. C. Harper, Notre Dame; Biff Jones, Army; Rip Miller, Navy; Maj. Philip Fleming, Army; Hunk Anderson, Notre Dame; Mal Stevens, Yale; Pop Warner, Stanford; Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech; Andy Kerr, Colgate; Lou Little, Columbia; Gil Dobie, Cornell; Grantland Rice, John Kieran, Ted Husing and many others. The questions will be asked at the microphone by the noted guests and answered over the air by the members of the All-America Board.

TEAM TO BE NAMED

The meeting of the All-America Board to select the team for 1931 will be held the following day and the selections and story will be published exclusively in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph one week from tomorrow. For the first time on record, the mysteries of the All-America Board in executive session will be shown to millions of moving picture fans.

By exclusive arrangements, Universal Newsreel will make a talking picture of the board selecting the All-America team for 1931. Members of the board will discuss the various candidates, and, when the 11 players finally are selected, newsreel shots of each player in action will be used as a background for this unique picture.

MEMBERS OF BOARD

The All-America Board was founded in 1924 and consists of the following personnel: Tad Jones, for the East; Glenn Warner, for the Pacific Coat; W. A. Alexander, for the South; Jesse Harper, for the Middle West, and Christy Walsh, member-at-large. Harper succeeds the late Knute Rockne, who was a charter member of the board.

The first of the sectional all-star teams to be selected by the board will appear in tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. It will be Pop Warner's All-Pacific Coast team. The all-Southern eleven comes next and will be followed speedily by the others.

CARNERA STOPS CAMPOLO

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera, of Italy, bent down upon Victorio Campolo, taller heavyweight from Argentina, and snuffed him out in surprising fashion in the second round of a scheduled 15-round struggle at Madison Square Garden last night.

Carnera, a small-matter of 266½ pounds, and a mere six feet six inches tall, bounced the South American and his six feet seven inches and 224½ pounds to the canvas for a count of nine as soon as the second round had opened, and then finished him in 1:21 of the session with another volley of head punches.

It was a surprising, but unconvincing display of punching power on the part of the vast Venetian still the enigma of the heavyweights, for Campolo took the final count sitting down, gazing in melancholy fashion at the canvas, as if in deep meditation on some particularly perplexing problem of life.

TILDEN VICTOR OVER RICHARDS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Some 2,500 tri-state tennis fans braved slush and snow to greet Big Bill Tilden and his crack professional racquet troupe at Motor Square Garden last evening and surged from the arena convinced that the lean Philadelphian present pro champion of the world, remains a net force still most seriously to be reckoned with. That same throng unquestionably gathered two other quite interesting impressions: first, that in singles, at least, Tilden and his followers are in no sense hippodroming; second, that bare hardwood floors are most poorly adapted to top-flight play.

In substantiation of our initial contention we cite the point that not only did Big Bill travel to the limit of five bitter sets, this despite the fact that in the latter stages a leg was obviously ailing him—to edge out his former protege and current rival, Vincent Richards, dazzling Gothamite, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, but he agreed to tussle the distance at the will of Richards after Vinnie had registered surprise that all hands were rising to call quits after the scheduled best of three canters. As for item two, it was apparent in each of the trio of matches on the Garden program that the slippery surface both bothered the contestants under foot and hampered their timing of ground balls that skidded viciously to come up fast and heavy.

PARE TOPS BURKE

Tilden was utterly at sea as he floundered about on the gloss in the early moments of the fray. Richards running four games in set one ere Bill could break into the win column. Vinnie snared the session quickly as his opponent sought vainly to get under way. It was, indeed, 4-1 in the New Yorker's favor in the second frame ere Tilden found himself. Thereafter the ripping service and superior ground strokes of the titleholder held pretty general sway, except in the fourth set when fatigue and displeasure over an official ruling caused him to

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 28.—(AP.)—The Notre Dame Ramblers, enraged in their heaviest woolens and mufflers, are prepared for the annual clash with the Army at Yankee Stadium.

Disdaining the falling flakes that blanketed the polo field at Rye, N. Y., and a chilling wind that sent all except a handful of spectators to the welcome warmth of the clubhouse, Coach Hartley (Hunk) Anderson put his Fighting Irish through a stiff program yesterday, everything from preliminary exercises to dummy scrimmage.

The Ramblers' mentor was anxious to get his athletes accustomed to the inclement weather, which seemed certain to endure through today's engagement. Marchie Schwartz and the other Irish backs devoted most of the chilling period to punting and passing practice with the slippery oval.

TO TAKE NO CHANCES

"I'm taking no chances with this Army team," Anderson admitted, after he had removed his sodden shoes and seen that his huskies were properly cared for. "They have a habit of being just an ordinary football team until they play us, and then they suddenly turn into world beaters. Look at the last two years. We've been plenty lucky to beat them, 7 to 6 and 7 to 0."

It is this same old Army custom that promised to pack a capacity crowd of 80,000 fans into Babe Ruth's ballpark today. Strictly on form, Notre Dame rates a prohibitive favorite, but the football faithful have learned to throw all their figures out the window when the Irish and the Cadets collide. All seats for the tussle were sold days ago and the only available pasteboards are in the hands of speculators.

While the Ramblers braved the year's first snow to get in their final workout, the Cadets remained in seclusion at Orlarcliff, near West Point, where Coach Ralph Sasse gave them their last instructions on how to check Notre Dame's attack. They made the trip down the Hudson early this morning.

If Notre Dame fails to win, Jackie Rockne, son of the late coach, has an explanation.

MRS. ROCKNE TO ATTEND

Mrs. Knute Rockne, who arrived in New York yesterday, said Jackie told her when she left his home, he just didn't see how Notre Dame could get along without him. And Jackie knows a lot about football, even though he is only 5½ years old.

Upon her arrival at the hotel where the famous coach had stopped for the last 11 years whenever he came to New York, Mrs. Rockne experienced a touching scene. In the suite he always occupied awaiting her were members of the team, her boys, she called them. The lineup:

THREE SOCCER TILTS TODAY

By TOM BIRKS

Central League soccer fans have three interesting games to watch this afternoon. At Leslie Park the Pittsburgh Celtics, under the leadership of Harold Farmer, clash with the National Tube eleven.

Fans feel the passing of Tom Edwards from the managerial ranks with regret, but under the existing conditions the move had to be made sooner or later. Now the fans should get behind Tom Robinson and Farmer and help the Celtics score a winner.

At Swissvale, the Rovers meet Westinghouse. This game should mark another victory for Jimmy Dunlop's club. The Rovers have been clicking, and if the popular little manager can keep the club from injuries, the Red and White should go places.

At Sullivan's field, the German Sport Club tangles with Tarentum, and the Sport Club should win in easy fashion.

Tarentum must strengthen before it can begin to compete with any club in the Central loop, so Leslie Park and Swissvale are likely to get the crowds.

The London Tecumsehs, the boys who helped the Yellow Jackets introduce International League hockey in Pittsburgh a little more than a year ago, and who suffered most from the locals' sensational drive into the play-offs last season, will be out to avenge for their first triumph of the new campaign when they oppose the Reidmen on Duquesne Garden ice at 8:30 tonight.

With few exceptions the Tecumsehs who will appear here tonight are the same aggregation which was nosed out by the margin of one and one-half games in the sensational Pittsburgh-London fight for a place in the championship series last March and they are anxious to get revenge on the pucksters who kept them out of the post-season classic.

HOLWAY WITH VISITORS

Toots Holway, blond defense stalwart who broke into pro hockey with the Pittsburgh Pirates heads the list of Tecumseh holdovers which includes Goalie Stuart and Forwards Pettmer, Groh, Quemeville and Brimkis.

Although they have not crashed into the victory column, the invaders have turned in some fairly creditable performances, holding Detroit scoreless in one battle and flirting the Indians to a 4-4 deadlock in Cleveland in another. In their last start Thursday night they forced the Bisons to travel at top speed to eke out a 2-1 decision at Buffalo. Coach Charlie Reid has called the attention of his Jackets to these London feats and nobody in the Pittsburgh camp regards the Tecumsehs as set-ups.

NO CHANGES LIKELY

In holding Detroit to a tie and downing Cleveland this week the Jackets satisfied Coach Reid with their showing, and no changes in the Pittsburgh lineup are contemplated for tonight.

The members of the football squads of Carnegie Tech and Duquesne who are to meet in a benefit game in the Stadium next Saturday, will be the guests of the local club at tonight's game. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh		London
Pettmer	G.	Stuart
Brimkis	D.	Holway
Groh	D.	Quemeville
Hudson	C.	Cook
Kilpatrick	W.	Smith
Boston	W.	Lowrey

Referee, Pittsburgh, Lowrey, Boston. Linesmen, Pittsburgh, Marty Burke, Boston; London, Corrigan, Quance or Cornick. Substitutes, Townsend, Cook, Quance, Cornick, Pittsburgh, Boston, Lowrey, Burke.

The Coach's Viewpoint

By Howard Harpster

General college coach and former all-America star at Carnegie Tech.

Howard Harpster

The football stock of the Big Six and the Missouri Valley was under heavy pressure Thursday afternoon and suffered a record decline in the 1931 season thus far. Nebraska [illegible] during which Dr. Sutherland's Great Panther eleven smashed [illegible] to the Cornhuskers' goal. [illegible] the Missourians scored on a football field to score against a team which had permitted only two other opponents to cross its goal. And the ragged gash in the field was one of the most [illegible] players, Warren Heller.

At the moment [illegible] to receive the first [illegible] toward and then [illegible] a forward pass [illegible] Schwartz for the fifth [illegible] too bad he was received early in the last quarter for he may have had a few more touchdowns to his credit which he ran scoring [illegible] accomplishments.

Without wishing to detract from the glory of the Pitt backs and everyone agrees that Reider Heller and Sebastian are great runners it appears to this writer that the Panther line is real reason for most of the success of the 1931 Pitt team . . . Certainly in Thursday's game, the plays of the Blue and Gold's forward wall was the single outstanding factor. Everyone closely connected with the grid iron sport knows that "as the line goes, so goes the team," and it being the last varsity game for each of the seven linemen, they were determined to play their best.

The [illegible] was the climax to the season for the Panthers and it [illegible] one of the best teams in the East, if not of the entire country. Only the Irish of Notre Dame stood in the way of a perfect record and in the first half of that game I couldn't see any difference between the teams except two forward pass plays.

Carnegie Tech outplayin New York University's much o the game, lost another heart breaker by a 7-to-6 score . . . The only reason Tech did not score a second touchdown was that one of the boys let a pass slip through his fingers when standing on the goal line with no opponents in sight . . . However, close ones count only in horseshoes, and, even though it appears that the Tech boys deserved to win, the score still reads 7 to 6 in favor of the Violets . . . If ever a team has had more than its share of bad breaks, it is this year's Tech eleven.

With only very mediocre material with which to work and called upon to face a most difficult schedule the Tech coaches placed on the field one of the greatest fighting eleven in the school's history . . . To Cap Armentrout and the rest of the Carnegie players I would say that they have done a much better job in a losing season than many teams before them which were blessed with better breaks, an easier schedule and more material.

JOE DEVINE BUC VISITOR

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Joe Devine

"Joe is here for a visit of two or three days before he attends the annual meetings at West Baden and Chicago," said Dreyfuss.

HAS LONG CONTRACT

"Devine has two more years on his Mission contract," explained Dreyfuss in stating that Joe was not to be the incoming pilot of the Buccaneers.

GAME TURNED DOWN

SPORT VIGNETTES

[illegible] fact that after Paul Reider was considered the greatest running mate of Warren Heller at halfback for Pitt this year, a check-up of the statistics shows that Mac Sebastian, as this reiter must, played 52 per cent of the time across the season, so that the coaches hardly can be blamed for hiding Sebastian's light under a bushel until they were forced to turn him loose when Reider was hurt early in the finale with Nebraska . . . Sebastian played one-third of the opener with [illegible] . . . The Nebraska game pulled a crowd of 50,000, with 27,111 paid admissions, or less than 1,000 cash customers short of the number the Pitt-Carnegie Tech game attracted. Which either speaks well for the fact that the run-of-mine fans thought the Cornhuskers would give the Panthers a real battle instead of bowing, 40-0, or that Thanksgiving Day just naturally is a good football day . . . It is not generally known, but Coach Sutherland of Pitt offered to cut the last quarter five minutes when he noted that the Nebraska replacements were badly shot, but the Huskers declined the proposition.

Charlie Donley, nephew [illegible] Bob Boyer of Youngstown [illegible] gave a fine exhibition of [illegible] all-around ability [illegible] Cleveland, in which he [illegible] from a knockdown to the first round to stop [illegible] Ralph Phillips, a Detroit Golden Gloves champion, in three rounds, flooring Ralph [illegible] three times before the referee called a halt . . . And all of this with Burke [illegible] doubling a [illegible] . . . Geoffrey Jeffrey, brother of Bob, also is a [illegible] boxer and is a student [illegible] the Carnegie Tech school of drama . . . The reason Mickey Dunn, [illegible] classy young lightweight, is suspended is because he took a flier to box a kid named Mayer Pushore in a six-round bout in Columbus before Ruby [illegible] a proposed elimination with Lou Brannon at Johnstown last Monday night . . . He suffered a cut over the [illegible] in the first round at Columbus, but [illegible] bandaged up and pushed around that it will be a few months before he can be [illegible] to box again, suspension or no suspension. Hereafter, he'll [illegible] believe a rumor . . . A Pushore can't always what the [illegible] is [illegible].

FRENCH WRITES

Pat Dietz [illegible] a letter from Pitcher Lew Fonseca, [illegible] French, Pirate first baseman who [illegible] part of the American baseball entourage to England.

French declares that the games [illegible] crowds, the [illegible] figure [illegible] 65,000 or better for single games. Lefty states the Japanese are so enthused over the Yankee players they follow them about the streets. The interpreter [illegible] such a good one that French says he would like to spend the [illegible] Pittsburgh when the baseball season opens.

slip up for a service break that cost him the inning.

RICHARDS SHOWS WELL

Richards magnificent as ever at the barrier, is still somewhat weak on second service and inadequate off he-hand his offside shots lacking depth and variety cross-court defensive slices for the greater part. Tilden, working from his accustomed post at the baseline, flubbed a multitude of attempts that he would have cared for handily on clay, grass or even the special canvas covering that couldn't be laid at Madison Square because of the pillars [illegible] behind the court area. But after impressive start, Bill [illegible] going in wonted fashion to win [illegible] sizzling lobs and [illegible] shots crosscourt and down the lines to force Vinnie into error and not infrequently to pass him cleanly at the mesh. The court record was the [illegible] of the Tilden-Richards Hall-Burke [illegible] both Vin topped at 10-8, 6-1 last Monday.

In the spotted preliminary singles fracas, Emmett Pare, Chicago and former Georgetown University's ace, repeated his state capital victory over Albert Burke, Irish flash and ranking professional of Europe. Speedy service and sweeping forehand stood the American youth in fine stead as the Riviera flash went under at 6-1, 6-4.

Burke, quite unfamiliar with and flabbergasted by the skating-rink hardwood, failed to show to usual advantage. Only in spurts of spectacular volleying did he offer indication of his true mastery of the pastime. Pare lapsed twice to blow service in the second set, but on neither occasion was the Gaelic stylist able to profit by the hostile letdown. Pare is a vastly improved racqueteer and a surprisingly colorful one to watch.

The lone doubles affair, arriving as distinct anti-climax to the Tilden-Richards marathon, was cut to a single set, which Richards and Burke cantered away with easily from Tilden and Pare, 6-3. Tilden, jaded and limping, performed perfunctorily and, aside from a number of ripping volley exchanges up front, the melee was featureless.

[illegible] Yale with a well-deserved victory [illegible] Harvard to a standstill [illegible] the same a strong favorite [illegible] course, and without underestimating Princeton's possibilities in the least should win. The game will be much closer than generally expected, however.

Holy Cross may be expected to [illegible] off with a victory over Boston College but here as in the case of Yale and Princeton, the traditional phases play a vital part. Holy Cross, however, has a fine football eleven and is favored to win.

HARRY KECK

Tommy Loughran, the very clever former light-heavyweight champion, avers that he'd rather fight a southpaw any day in the week than a right hander because he says they're his meat. We've always contended southpaws should be easy, but the great majority of fighters shy clear of them.

Jack Perry, former local welterweight boxer and later stage and movie actor, now located in San Jose, Cal., writes that he is heading East after the first of the year with his good middleweight, Gus Salerno, and will be dropping in here. Salerno is all that is left of a stable of young 'uns Perry began to prep for the big time a year ago, but Jack says he is the real thing.

Jake Comer, local handler of boxers, is in receipt of a letter asking him if he still is wrestling and [illegible] address, and the letter is sent direct to his proper address. Must be [illegible] another wrestler. . . . The great all-senior line of Pitt's eleven which routed Nebraska at the Stadium on Thanksgiving Day sang its swan-song in that battle. It was relieved in its entirety in the fourth quarter and is here seen leaving the field, a septet of marauding forwards that stands out among the best of Panther lines of all time. To a man they were playing their last college game.

"THE CENTRE OF THE UNIVERSE"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

These people do not have to mystify themselves into a state of gloom, cynicism, don't-give-a-care, despair, or nonchalance, trying to figure out where and what is the Centre of the Universe. What it looks like, what it means, what spiritual joy there is to be gotten out of it. They already know. Since a very small, puzzy, round-eyed person made an appearance in their midst, became one of "the gang," created a mild havoc in their settled ways, and a delirious havoc in the mild quiet current of their heart beats.

Since little old "Jimmy" came to stay, at their house, and sweep the "glooms" away. Mommy has struck a permanent pose of adoration that will never cease. Daddy has struck another—of pride—high, nose-in-the-air, unbelievable pride. "Haw!" he says to the rest of the world. Auntie Kay—beautiful, gay—forgets to be selfish for his sake, and bores the other girls to death about him. God-father Jim has a face like the sun. It is melted away in smiles. His heart is melted too. He never liked the name of "Jim"—but now he does. Really! It IS a nice name. Uncle Nat, immaculate old bachelor, crawls on the floor in his dress suit and brings Pooh-bears to the altar to show his devotion. HE never thought much of babies. All red, they were. But this one. This one is different from any child living. And Gramm, and Gramp. They are very devoted, hilarious, dear old slaves. They have lost their sense of what is proper in the attitude of an adult toward a child, completely. "They never let ME do that," cries the Daddy of the Centre of Universe.

No puzzle to this happy family—that terrible question of what is the end and the beginning and the centre of all things. They have it right at home.

Return of Fishing Party Interrupts Discussion of Note

"You mean the boss," I gasped as the excited voices of Hank and Bill floated up to us, recalling the saga of the day's fishing excursion.

The boss, being other, Lillian nodded her head vigorously. "They are the only ones who shouldn't know, for the search and they are the ones who will be the first to be told the whole story," she said. "They can scan the whole country over, standing on their shoulders, and not see us hunting for them. Your father, by virtue of his work at Washington, has a line of communication with every officer in the country, and he can tip off the warden, this, before anyone is making a move of searching for him."

Shortly. The exclamation was a protest, and Lillian laughed.

"I suppose, really, I haven't quite taken leave of my senses, and setting half-baked lads into the woods with loaded guns in search of a Chinese who is also being hunted by his own countrymen isn't quite my idea of a safe and safe Fourth of July. They'd forget all caution in their desire to test their marksmanship. No, the guns are simply for the benefit of any gentlemen of the Orient who might be lurking in the underbrush. Pure bluff, dearest—unadulterated but useful."

But won't the boys be in danger?

"I don't think so, especially as I imagine they'll never be so far away from Harry that he can't hear the police whistles with which he will provide them, and which he will instruct them are to be sounded only for a state emergency. Your part will be to give them so good a description of the Chinese we hope to escape, and also of the man whom you suspect is following this morning, that they will be able to distinguish at a glance 'twixt tweedledeer and tweedledee-dum. Personally, I think the chances are all against their encountering the bloodthirsty gentleman of this morning. Either they will find Lee Chow, former henchman in time to get him up to the farmhouse unobserved or—they will be too late."

I shivered again, and Lillian roughly abruptly caught my hand and pulled me up with her.

"Enough of horrors!" she said. "Let's go downstairs and find out the reason for all the excitement."

The house, on all at the kitchen door," I said when we had reached the lower hall.

With Katie's contratura soprano doubling for Abou Ben Adhem, Lillian said with truth, for my little maid's giggles and trill ejaculations were indeed leading all the rest.

The reason for the excitement was much in evidence when we had crossed the deserted kitchen and had come out to the long table under the big cherry tree at the side of the kitchen door. In the early days of our life at the farm, Jim fashioned it for the first reception and cleaning of all vegetables, fruits, fish and fowl intended for the kitchen, and it has held many a burden calculated to give even the hungriest man an additional zest for his food.

Never, however, had it held one attracting so much exciting comment. For upon the papers which careful Jim had hurriedly spread over its recently scrubbed surface had been dumped a mass of silvery fish around which were grouped not only the members of the fishing party, but the rest of the family as well.

Beat that record if you can," Harry Underwood was boasting.

"How many?" Lillian and I spoke together, for like most people living near the sea we never fail to thrill at the sight of an unusually big catch of fish.

"One hundred and three!" Junior and Roderick turned from the table where they were poking excited fingers into the shining mass and chorused the number. "And Katie says we can have some for supper, didn't you, Katie?"

Sure thing, ef dey cleaned. I no can clean mit all rest of work, but cooking—dots noodings."

Yes, it is something," I said warmly, for I never fail to let her know my understanding of any unusual kindness on her part, and I knew that there were few cooks who would look kindly upon so arduous a culinary burden at the last minute. It is very kind of you, Katie, to offer to cook the fish at so late an hour. Who are volunteers for the cleaning?"

"We'll help," Marion said. "I suppose our pressing can wait."

She looked doubtfully at her mother, patiently remembering her reminder that all preparations for their journeys the next day must be made by the girls before they slept. But before Lillian could speak, William struck in, shyly but with determination in his voice.

"You won't do any dirty work like that. Hank and I can manage the cleaning without any help."

Household Hints

Use moderately warm water for cleaning brushes, and avoid the use of soda or strong soap powder. Rinse in plenty of cold water, as this stiffens the bristles.

Old Turkish towels are excellent for clothes for bathroom cleaning. They are so soft they will not scratch, yet heavy enough to stand the hard wear of the cleansing powder.

Keep a can of talcum powder in the kitchen if you are a frequent user of rubber gloves, and sprinkle powder in them before putting them on. They will be much easier to slip on and off, and the powder will absorb any perspiration caused by the gloves.

For the mother who is extremely nervous about the danger of her children's clothes catching fire, is is well to know that by soaking for five minutes in a solution of a pound of ammonia phosphate to a gallon of cold water, the clothes may be made fireproof until washed or drenched by rain.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Realize Shortcomings When Heart Is Weak

The number of deaths from heart disease in this country has increased 50 per cent within the past 20 years. This statement is not a pleasing one, but it warrants serious consideration.

Dr. Copeland

When we use the term "heart disease" we refer to that condition in which the power of the heart is definitely impaired. This may occur from one of many things.

The most common form of heart disease is that due to infection. The infection travels through the body by way of the blood stream. It reaches the inside of the heart and locates there. Then follows a condition that seriously interferes with the normal action of the heart.

The heart is divided into four chambers: two upper and two lower chambers. The upper chambers are spoken of as "auricles;" the left and right auricles; the lower chambers are the "ventricles;" the right and left ventricles.

Between the left auricle and the left ventricle is a valve called the "mitral valve." In heart disease it is this valve that is most commonly affected. It is in particular danger of attack in cases of acute rheumatic fever.

When the mitral valve is involved there is an interference with its normal working. In consequence, the blood is permitted to leak through. This is the reason why this trouble is spoken of as a "leaking heart." The doctors refer to it as "mitral heart disease."

When such a condition exists, it produces a "murmer." This may be heard by the physician who listens through a stethoscope applied to the heart. In a mild form of heart trouble the murmer is of no particular significance.

In the advanced form, as a result of the changed function due to the impaired valve, the heart enlarges. As it increases in size, it does not do its work as well. In a more pronounced case, where there are impaired valvular action, enlarged heart and weak muscle, there is sluggish action, with the result that the blood is not passed on through the body as it should be.

In such individuals there is usually a shortness of breath, the face is pale and the lips do not have the normal reddish color, but often appear bluish. A very common symptom is swelling of the feet.

There are other valves, of course, not as frequently involved as the mitral.

Another form of heart disease where there is no defect of the valves, is spoken of as "myocarditis." The myocardium is the muscle of the heart. This muscle may become badly weakened from overstrain, lack of nourishment, or physical disease. The action of the heart depends entirely upon the strength and tone of this muscle.

Supplying the heart are numerous blood vessels which may become diseased, like any other blood vessels in the body. A common form of disease is hardening of the vessels, causing the condition known as "arterio-sclerosis" of the heart. This is rarely found in youth, but is a sign of oncoming age.

Unfortunately most people become alarmed when they are told they have heart disease. Yet the records show that many people with heart disease live to a good old age. They are sure to do so if they realize their shortcomings and live accordingly.

Quiet life, abundant rest and work that is not fatiguing are imperative. Periodic examinations by the doctor should be the rule. Where advised, rest in bed should not be considered an ordeal, but a way to health and long life.

Answers to Health Queries

Miss M. A. Q.—What would cause a headache on the top of the head and down the back of the neck, the head seems to feel too heavy? What treatment would give relief?

A.—Have your blood pressure taken to make sure there is no trouble from that source. Headaches may be due to a number of different causes.

J. B. Q.—What are among the symptoms of diabetes and how can it be treated?

A.—Excessive thirst, abnormal appetite, loss of weight, nervousness are all apt to be present under the circumstances. Proper diet and general care will usually bring about relief. See your doctor and he will outline specific treatment.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Moth patches and liver spots will give way to treatment, if treatment is given soon enough. Apply any good bleach and keep the surface well oiled.

Only complexions go on beaming and shimmering despite the continued drubbing with an old powder pad. Trouble is in overstimulated sebaceous glands. They can be coaxed to quiet down by daily applications of witch hazel or eau de cologne, and by the use of ice after the skin has been anointed with a cream. Thin creams remove oil if the creams themselves are removed thoroughly. Don't let them remain on over night.

Here is a mean trick to play on a complexion that has a fobia against soap. Cleanse it with cold cream, remove the cream thoroughly, apply a second allotment. Dip a washcloth in warm soap suds and place the cloth over the face. With the oil acting as a go-between the skin will not redden, feel sensitive, or kick up a cutaneous disturbance. Rinse with warm water, then with cold, use cream again, put on the finishing touches with ivory powder and whatever war paint happens to be the favorite blush material.

Even the sharpest nail file will not cut away all of the inner lining of the finger nail. After filing, cleanse the nail rave with an orange wood stick and give a final filing with emery boards.

COLDS

RUB Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel easier. Repeat the Musterole-rub once an hour for five hours . . . what a glorious relief!

Those good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor—are mixed with other valuable ingredients in Musterole to make it what doctors call a "counter-irritant" because it gets action and is not just a salve.

It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Thanks for Gifts Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. At a birthday party should the host open the gifts and show them to the guests?

2. What is the correct form to use to thank the guest when opening each gift?

3. Is it proper to take off your hat in the lobby of a theater regular theater?

B. M.

1. If the host is the one whose birthday it is, then he should open each gift and say something appreciative and charming about each gift.

2. How very kind you were to make my birthday so happy. And such a handkerchief! I'll wear that with great pride. Thank you so much. Or "What a friend to me you always, making me so happy. And how did you know that I was longing for a watch? You're a beauty, and you are most kind to give it to me. I guess I'm happy as a lark today. Thank you with all my heart, and you are to think of me for such grand gifts. What a serious evening that is that well-dressed.

3. Neither women nor men should wear hats in the lobby of a theater. The only exception to this rule is when the weather is so inclement that it is necessary to wear rubbers, and then the hat should be removed.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When sending wedding announcement and invitations, may I send one to the father of the bride? (2) Is it correct to send two cards with one envelope? (3) Should the wife's name be engraved on the husband's visiting card?

2. Must I also send invitations to my future relatives who live out of the city, even though I know that they will not be able to attend?

Laurel Decides to Make a Favorable Impression On Young Doctor

Laurel waited by the driveway for Dr. Harvey to leave the house

Synopsis

Laurel Oakes 19, thoroughly modern, finds that she will be alone at dinner. She flirts with Roger Sartoris, 28, blasé married young man who is infatuated with her. Imogene Cass invites Laurel to a moonlight party. Laurel drives her roadster out to a deserted farm house where she finds many of her friends intoxicated having a gay time. The party becomes rowdy and Imogene hits Laurel with a glass. Laurel runs from the house. Finding her tires slashed she runs down the road and is rescued by young Dr. Bruce Harvey, who knows her mother. He takes Laurel home. The next day Laurel tells her mother that pleasure means more to her than love or romance. Laurel visits Imogen who apologizes for hitting her with the glass. Imogen questions Laurel about Dr. Harvey.

Now Go On

SEEK ROMANCE

"Not a bit of it, when a lady isn't so young as she used to be but feels a keen desire to get busy. The girl's answer that her husband's 3,000 miles away and that anyhow she's a bit fed-up on her Typed Business Man. He knows (to that it isn't entirely at all for Culture—capital C—that has brought her across the Atlantic! It's the hope of Romance in a Paris spring, with the chestnuts blooming along the boulevards and the little birdies twittering.

"So when some other bird whistles a tune, the Old Chestnuts are responding."

"You got me, Steve. You're a bright child, Laurel."

"But, Imogen, these quite old women . . . why should they behave so?"

"Because they feel it's the last call to the dining-car of . . . shall we call it a Grand Passion?"

"Ugh! It's disgusting."

"Not a bit of it. Be liberal-minded. Even if weren't for the gay and game ladies who flock there, Paris wouldn't be one-tenth as prosperous! Apart from the jazz and the gigolos think what the beauty parlors and the wig makers take in from the female seekers of rejuvenation! And the billions lot of money handed to the plastic surgeons for the 'face liftings'! To the American female mind, Paris stands for two things . . . Clothes . . . and Dad was quite middle-aged and rubicund and fat. Was it possible that Connie too wanted to wander in new pastures?

The very thought of such a thing was dreadful.

But—

Connie was a close friend of Mrs. Delahunt's, the lady who had behaved so scandalously abroad, according to Imogen's story.

And Connie was clothes-mad, too . . . and come to think of it, Connie spent hours and hours each week in hairdressing shops and in beauty salons.

When the family occupied the apartment on Park avenue in New York, didn't a masseuse come to pummel Connie's figure into beauty every morning?

It all fitted in . . .

And following on the disconcerting talk this morning there had been the tango lesson . . .

"Let's talk of something else," said Laurel, brusquely.

"Right!" Imogen rose with a lazy grace and wrapped the rug about her. "Let's moose along to the house and I'll give you a hair of the dog that bit you."

The two young girls walked back to the bungalow.

Imogen poured Laurel a lot of gin, adding an equal quantity of vermouth to it.

"That's the real stuff."

"Thanks." She knew she oughtn't to take it, but she did have a hang-over still . . . and she had been vaguely upset by Imogen's talk, which she wanted [illegible] . . . [illegible] . . . [illegible] . . .

History Repeats Itself

By Plumb and Conselman

Tommy Harris refused to pay a small dinner check among a party of friends, and since Ella has no use for miserly people IS SHE BAWLING HIM OUT?
WHY DON'T YOU GIVE ME A CHANCE TO EXPLAIN?
EXPLAIN? IT ISN'T NECESSARY, TOMMY! I SUPPOSE YOU'LL DEFEND YOURSELF BY TELLING ME YOU'RE NOT STINGY—IT'S JUST THAT YOU'VE DEVELOPED MARVELOUS CONTROL OF YOUR GENEROUS IMPULSES!
CAN'T I SEE YOU AGAIN, ELLA?
NOT IF I SEE YOU FIRST! YOU KNOW, TOMMY—I'VE ALWAYS LOOKED FOR THE PERFECT MAN—ONE WHO HAD EVERYTHING—LOOKS, REFINEMENT, INTELLIGENCE, A SENSE OF HUMOR, AND A GENEROUS NATURE! I THOUGHT YOU WERE THE MAN!
BUT YOU HAVE YOUR WEAK SPOT LIKE THE REST! DO YOU EVER HEAR OF ACHILLES? HE WAS A FAMOUS GREEK SOLDIER WHOSE MOTHER HELD HIM BY THE HEEL AND DIPPED HIM IN THE RIVER STYX—THAT MADE HIS BODY IMMUNE TO ANY WOUNDS!
BUT IN DIPPING HIM SHE HELD HIM BY THE FOOT, AND HIS HEEL DIDN'T GET WET! HE FINALLY WAS KILLED BY BEING SHOT IN THE HEEL—HIS ONLY WEAK SPOT! YOU'RE NO RELATION TO ACHILLES, TOMMY, BUT TAKE IT FROM ME—YOU CERTAINLY ARE A BIG HEEL!
NOW! Did you ever see Ella so burned up? Is Tommy to be condemned? Wait and see!

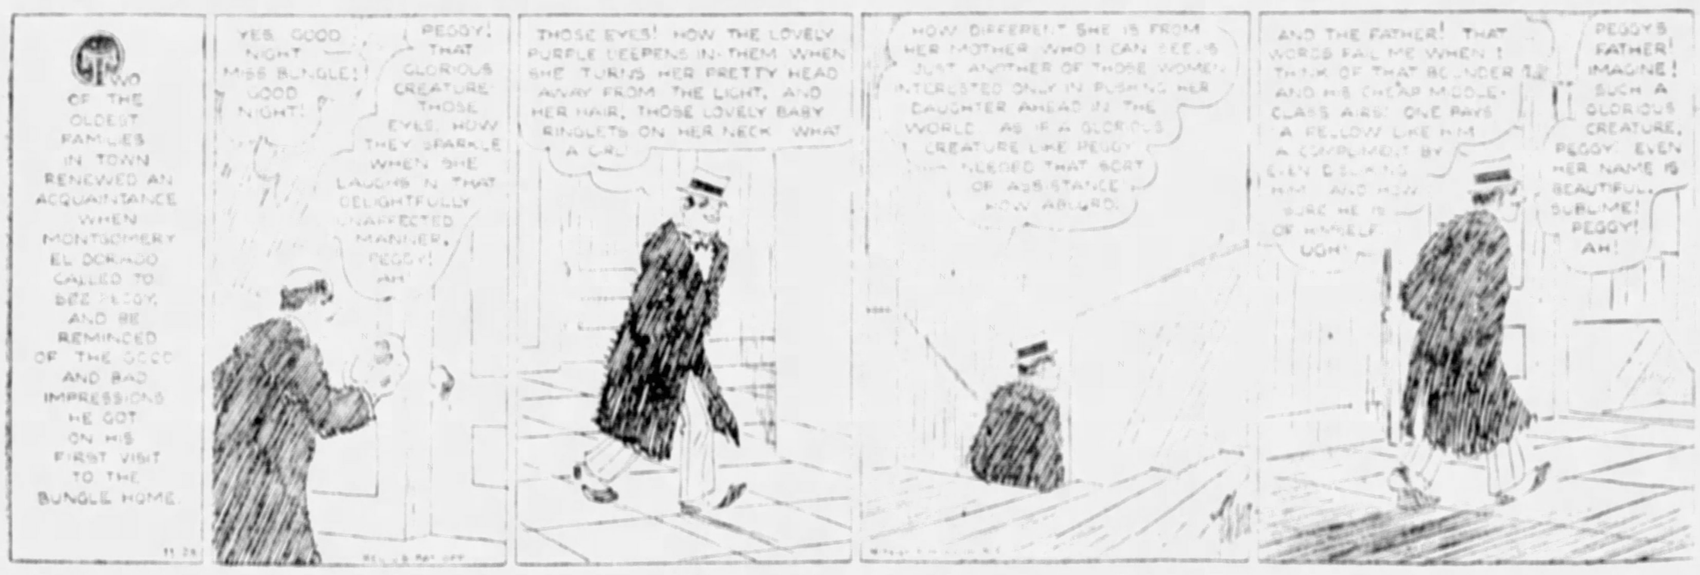
By Tuthill



TWO OF THE OLDEST FAMILIES IN TOWN RENEWED AN ACQUAINTANCE WHEN MONTGOMERY EL DORADO CALLED TO SEE PEGGY, AND BE REMINDED OF THE GOOD AND BAD IMPRESSIONS HE GOT ON HIS FIRST VISIT TO THE BUNGLE HOME.
YES, GOOD NIGHT — MISS BUNGLE! GOOD NIGHT!
PEGGY! THAT GLORIOUS CREATURE! THOSE EYES, HOW THEY SPARKLE WHEN SHE LAUGHS IN THAT DELIGHTFULLY UNAFFECTED MANNER. PEGGY! AH!
THOSE EYES! HOW THE LOVELY PURPLE DEEPENS IN THEM WHEN SHE TURNS HER PRETTY HEAD AWAY FROM THE LIGHT, AND HER HAIR, THOSE LOVELY BABY RINGLETS ON HER NECK WHAT A CRO
HOW DIFFERENT SHE IS FROM HER MOTHER, WHO I CAN SEE, IS JUST ANOTHER OF THOSE WOMEN INTERESTED ONLY IN PUSHING HER DAUGHTER AHEAD AT THE WORLD. AS IF A GLORIOUS CREATURE LIKE PEGGY NEEDED THAT SORT OF ASSISTANCE! HOW ABSURD!
AND THE FATHER! THAT WORDS FAIL ME WHEN I THINK OF THAT BOUNDER AND HIS CHEAP MIDDLE-CLASS AIRS! ONE PAYS A FELLOW LIKE HIM A COMPLIMENT BY EVEN DEIGNING HIM AND HOW SURE HE IS OF HIMSELF UGH!
PEGGY'S FATHER! IMAGINE! SUCH A GLORIOUS CREATURE, PEGGY! EVEN HER NAME IS BEAUTIFUL, SUBLIME! PEGGY! AH!

Now for Christmas!

With Buying Power Higher Because of Lower Prices, Holiday Giving Should Be Increased

The Christmas spirit is on the air. Thirty-two banks in Pittsburgh and the vicinity are to distribute about $5,500,000 next week among the depositors in their Christmas savings clubs. Secretary William H. Lesser of the State Banking Department is expected to issue a call for more windows to hasten the release of cash by the closed banks. Plenty of money is promised for Christmas spending.

These are prosperous times for large cut rates in how salaries have not been reduced much after all; they constitute a large section of the population. Their buying power has been greatly increased by the drop in prices. The 48 pages of yesterday's issue of this newspaper are typical of what big gains the advertising columns record. Remember, that the news?

It once had fallen as deep as Rip Van Winkle, two years ago, and we were just to wonder how the reductions noticed in the prices of groceries, commodities and services would be almost incredible. Apples, butter, eggs were the same low as in 1929, as the pictures of "Mr. Hoover" in full of pumpkins is how delighted he would be at the opportunities represented by the reductions.

Elegant clothing, jewelry, automobiles, railroad and steamship trips and a host of other things have been brought within the reach of people who never before could afford them. If they are ever to acquire them, this is their chance. Prices may or may not continue at this level. Shrewd people open the door when opportunity knocks.

Without spending a cent more for Christmas gifts than was spent two years ago, or even last year, more gifts can be purchased. It is to be hoped that advantage will be taken of this condition to increase Christmas giving. People whose incomes have not been reduced should give presents to persons whom they do not ordinarily remember in this way—to neighbors, friends and relatives who are unemployed, for example.

The Welfare and Emergency Association campaign will end Monday, and unless a miracle occurs over the week-end it looks as if Pittsburgh would fail by about $2,000,000 to reach the $6,000,000 goal. It is too bad that the agencies of social service are to be so cramped by lack of funds during the coming year. Even after the campaign is formally ended there is nothing to prevent people from giving additional donations, and it is to be hoped they will.

The weather was probably too pleasant while the Welfare Fund drive was on. With fair skies and summer like temperatures of the kind that prevailed up until Thanksgiving it was hard for the well-to-do to visualize the suffering that the poor must endure when they have to be out in slush and snow, such as we had yesterday, in leaking shoes and inadequate clothing.

Failure of the Welfare Fund to reach its quota makes it more imperative that other relief efforts shall be successful. We hope the Legislature will accomplish something worth while, but the outlook is none too encouraging with Gov. Pinchot insisting on measures like the proposed taxes on cigarets and gasoline which experience has shown will defeat their own purpose.

The challenges to generous giving that have been handed back and forth between Gov. Pinchot and Senator Davis have been more amusing than edifying. If it comes to a showdown the unemployed are likely to benefit greatly. The poker game talk was unnecessary, however. No one acquainted with the character of the two gentlemen would suspect either of being niggardly.

While there is a possibility that state taxes will be increased to provide relief for the destitute, the outlook for a liberal slash in the city tax rate is encouraging. Much depends, however, on the time when the budget estimates for next year are turned over to Council by Mayor Kline. The longer the delay the less likelihood of the reduction of five mills demanded by the Building Owners and Managers' Association.

The budget should be in Council's hands next week. In asking Council to reduce next year's tax rate by five mills now, and then "cut the coat to fit the cloth," the Building Owners complained of the delay in the receipt of the budget. The passing of every day with the budget still retained by the Mayor adds to the force of the complaint.

The taxpayers are very much interested in the appropriations that the various departments of the municipal government are going to ask for 1932 and would like to see them thoroughly discussed. Council is required by law to fix the tax rate not later than January 1, so none too much time remains for the discussion, unless the millage is to be fixed first and then the appropriations made to conform.

One of the things that calls for discussion when municipal expenditures come up for consideration is the contract under which certain city streets are lighted with gas and gasoline lamps by the Sunlight Illuminating Company, at a cost of $90,000 a year. The Duquesne Light Company's offer to substitute electric lamps with 50 per cent more illumination for $73,875 a year was rejected.

Extravagant spending of the taxpayers' money is not confined to the city. We have a reminder in the suit filed against the County Directors of the Poor that the people of the county outside the city have also been called upon to shoulder an unnecessarily high burden. The Poor Directors have some serious charges to answer.

"For economic reasons" the Carnegie Institute International exhibition of paintings is not to be held next year. One of the most attractive pictures in the current show, "Babette," by Eugene Speicher, is reproduced in full color in the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph to be issued tomorrow.

The American Weekly Magazine Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will have some new facts and pictures relating to Little Edith, the child who was forced to live in a closet. Among the other articles is one of considerable importance by Congressman Fred A. Britten, chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, who asserts President Hoover's naval policy threatens to bring disaster.

Rich Man, Poor Man' -:- By Nelson Harding

Strange these hands are so ill-mated:
One so vigorous and healthy,
And the other thin and feeble,
With a patched and ragged coatsleeve,

One hand full, the other empty.
In their gestures, grasping, pleading,
As the puzzled rich man, poor man,
Tries to find a better balance.

Thoughts on Signor Grandi's Visit

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

To those millions of Americans who are convinced from the record and the wreckage that Mr. Hoover's administration has been one of almost uniform failure, it must be confusing to read the glowing tributes paid him as an outstanding statesman of the age by the distinguished foreign ministers who have been coming to America for a purpose. This is to be expected. It is the language of diplomacy. Men who even hate each other have been known to toast each other most glowingly at a state banquet.

However, there is another possible explanation. These representatives of England, France and Italy came here to get something in the interest of their people which the President evidently is anxious to concede. That this is a further reduction or "cancellation" of the debts these nations owe us is not unreasonably assumed.

* * *

Grandi Lifted The Curtain

Signor Grandi, the clever and interesting young Minister of Foreign Affairs in Italy, spoke the other night at a dinner of the Council of Foreign Relations, and strengthened this interpretation. Unwittingly, perhaps, he lifted the curtain on the mysterious conferences he has had with the President.

As the foreign statesmen come and go, we regularly have an official statement from the White House, prepared with the Talleyrand idea of concealing thought, and merely conveying the impression that things of vast importance were accomplished. The American government has not yet taken the American people into its confidence on what has been agreed upon for the American people. These have been open covenants secretly arrived at.

But the speech of Signor Grandi leaves us in no doubt about one thing, the further reduction or the "cancellation" of the debts due us from 14 nations has always been on the agenda, and from the enthusiastic manner in which the foreign statesmen emerge from these secret conferences affecting the interests of the American people, we are left in little doubt as to the concessions made by Mr. Hoover.

Thus Grandi recalls some "substantial reductions" made in the war debt of Italy some time ago, and, as we recall them, they were indeed, "substantial." But that apparently is not to be the end. He speaks a little vaguely of the possibility of further "sacrifices," and, like Laval and MacDonald, he assures us that his country will be ready to make them.

As far as we can see, there is no sacrifice these other nations are to be called upon to make, certainly nothing comparable to the sacrifices that are being prepared for us. They are willing to "sacrifice" on the reparations from Germany to the extent that we sacrifice on the debt from them.

But if they get a thousand from Germany and pay that thousand to us, they make no sacrifice in relieving Germany of the thousand she pays them, if we release them from the obligation of paying the thousand they owe us.

But—when we forgive that thousand, that is owed to us, that does not cancel the debt. We merely pass the debt on to the American people.

* * *

Some Fear About The Repayment

It is interesting to note the conspicuous part played by the big banking group here in the receptions of these foreign statesmen. This group has loaned enormous sums to these European countries at handsome interest, and they have no thought of reducing or cancelling those debts. They insist upon the letter of the bond. And that is business.

But these private loans have been so heavy, and in so many instances so unwise and unbankerlike, that there is some fear about the repayment from Germany unless the public debts can be transferred from the people of the countries that borrowed and got the money, to the people of this country from whose pockets the money went. There are billions of dollars involved in these debts, and they cannot be "canceled," they can merely be transferred.

And the meaning of the state processions of the statesmen to Washington, the flattering tape of the parades, the dinners, the spread of feathers, the whoopla couple to this, to create in the minds of the groundlings the idea that it would be a noble thing for them to take upon their bowed backs, in this year of their tribulation and two billion dollar deficit, the obligations of the 14 nations of the world. These nations are even willing to "sacrifice" the obligation to pay.

* * *

We Salute Grandi And Laval

That is the reason that M. Laval spoke of the "sacrifices" France is prepared to make with such a golden smile.

That is the reason that Signor Grandi beams like an Italian landscape over the sacrifice that Italy is prepared to make.

For all the sacrifice that is to be made under the scheme secretly developed is to fall on the taxpayers of America.

With Grandi and Laval we find no fault, against them we direct no criticism. We salute them both with genuine admiration for they are statesmen representing their own countries and not forgetting it for the fraction of a second. If their countries had made a loan to the United States they would not "forgive" the loan and pass the burden on to the people of Italy and France in increased taxes to the tune of billions—not in a thousand years.

* * *

Leads for His Country Only

Dino Grandi has been an interesting visitor. He is one of the fascinating figures of contemporary Europe. A minister of foreign affairs at 34, he has the diplomatic finesse of a veteran. He is brilliant and informed and a most attractive speaker. The very fact that popularly he is supposed to have been selected to wear the mantle of Mussolini ultimately adds to the general interest in the man and his personality.

He is a leader and he leads for his country only.

Just as Laval is a leader—who leads always for France.

But as Grandi looks about the ruin all around him, and notes the two billion dollar deficit, and sees the smokeless chimneys, and hears the importunate appeals to private charity not to let millions starve, and observes the concentration of Washington upon Europe, he must wonder a bit and smile when he retires from the flashlights to the secrecy of his own chamber.

* * *

They Are Often Disappointed

We wonder sometimes if European statesmen really know much about America and the American people. They act upon the theory that when they have visited official quarters in Washington, consulted with the bankers in New York, and had tea in exclusive quarters in Boston, they have seen America. That is the reason they are so disappointed in the results of their negotiations here. If some of them would come to Pittsburgh they would be astonished at the difference in the atmosphere politically. They would find that the mass of the Americans are as intensively national as they want their own people to be at home. And at this moment even a foreign statesman ought to understand that Mr. Hoover is not the best person to interpret America to them.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Wayward Parents

Have you noticed how impatient the Younger Generation are becoming with the follies and foibles of the Older Generation?

* * *

Girls are positively acquiring wrinkles worrying about their gay and skittish mothers and boys are getting headaches trying to keep tabs on their frivolous fathers.

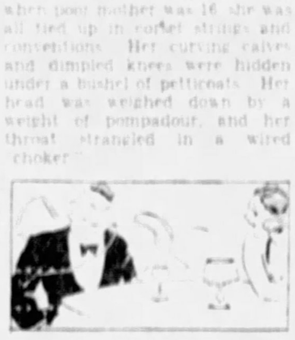
* * *

The very young members of the Younger Generation are beginning to write letters to the paper about it and to ask how to control a wayward parent. The shocking childishness and folly of parents in the Flaming Forties, who are trying to give life-like imitations of exact youth, has gotten on the nerves of their sons and daughters.

A modern young girl can't do anything original or startling but the first thing she knows her mother is trying it on. Rouge, cigarets, facials and dancing gigolos all these give Daughter a pain.

* * *

Well, perhaps they ARE silly—but have a heart! Remember that when poor mother was 16 she was all tied up in corset strings and conventions. Her curving calves and dimpled knees were hidden under a bushel of petticoats. Her head was weighed down by a weight of pompadour, and her throat strangled in a wired choker.



She went to the altar practically unkissed and remained a sweet old-fashioned wife-and-mother for 20 years. At 20 she looked like 40. So why blame her, if at 40 she tries to look 20—and cuts up like sixty?

* * *

Remember that all she knows of "life," she learned at YOUR knee, dear Daughter. So be patient and forbearing. All she knows of whooper rouging, dancing, smoking and petting YOU taught her! But give her a chance, and she'll soon snap out of it.

* * *

No, Children, you can't "control" a pair of wayward parents. You can only set them a Better Example, and hope that they'll profit by it. After all, Mother and Father aren't dead yet—and they still believe that they are entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of a good time.

* * *

If the Older Generation are too swift for you, remember that YOU set the pace—and you can always slow it down! They'll be awfully glad to give their old arteries and fallen arches a good rest!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—For some time friends have been wondering what in the world I could see in my pair of goldfish. Ethelbert and Gwendolyn—and I've reached the point of wondering myself. Especially Ethelbert, who mopes about opening and shutting his mouth like a horse chewing briars.

He acts dopey to me. When I go near the bowl he sinks half way to the bottom and glares sullenly. You'd think it was I who mussed up his career. As a matter of fact he was just another poor fish in a flower shop until I gave him a home on Park avenue.

He gets fresh water and a pinch of food daily and twice a week a salt water bath. Also there's Gwendolyn for light necking. But Eth just sulks. He may be darting hither and yon or to and fro, but the minute someone approaches he stops dead in a piscatorial pout.

Gwendolyn is different. She has a certain something. Before Sophie Tucker got back from London, I looked upon Gwen as the last of the red hot mamas. She acts outrageously with Ethelbert skimming by and flirting her fan tail in his face.

But Ethelbert, the stiff, is too busy catching up with his pouting to respond. Today from behind a castlain I saw Gwen peeking through a doorway of her rock castle, flipping in and out the windows, looping forward and back coyly. As much as to say: "I want you for Christmas!"

Ethelbert merely puffed his gills and suggested Theodore Dreiser waiting for the elevator after another Sinclair Lewis smacking. If it keeps up I'm going to have Eth psychoanalyzed. Maybe he's got a misplaced libido or a bachelor fixation. Or maybe he's just plain patsy.

Anyway, he certainly doesn't know how to treat a lady. Another 48 hours of his uppityness and I'll shop for another boy friend for Gwen. After all she deserves something better than existence with that stick-in-the-mud.

* * *

It is bad enough for a young lady vibrant with girlish freshness, to be cooped up a lifetime in two quarts of water, with a cantankerous crab like that at best. But when he hasn't enough gallantry to give a fin a slight flick when a lady passes it is time something must be done. There is no reason why Gwendolyn's life should be spoiled.

* * *

If she were one of those gin-drinking, uke-playing hussies it would be something else again. But she isn't. Her life is as open as a book. She couldn't hide anything if she wanted, of course, but you can't be around her 10 minutes without realizing she is not like most girls. Naturally, the narrow-minded might think she should sleep in another room in the castle at night instead of nestling between rocks with Eth. But as Cicero once snubbed himself, cried: "Caveat emptor to say nothing of Jedar Tag is ein kleines Leben," which, freely translated means, "I can take it, kid, can take it smack on the chin!"

* * *

Again it is possible I am unfair to Ethelbert. He may have reached that backwater period of life where he should drop around to see Prof. Steinach professionally. It may be imagination but it strikes me a few of his scales are wattled. There is a foggy milk cloud to his eyes, so frequently a forerunner of senility. He swims a few feeble strokes and stops, gasping and drooping, to the rock bottom of his bowl. Perhaps he is like a lot of us. He hasn't the old pepper but tries to carry on. One may see his human prototypes in the front row of the musical shows any evening. Another species of poor fish.

* * *

I tried the other day to spark them up by a separation. I filled the bathtub and let Gwendoyn have the run of it and was that hussy frisky! In about five hours I returned her to the bowl with Eth. She dived toward him with a coquettish zip, circled about and did everything but let down her hair. And what did he do? Just moved sluggishly away and struggled harder than ever for his breath. Wait a minute—do you suppose Ethelbert could have asthma? Or maybe it's the heaves.

Life isn't tough enough. I have to go through the winter with a set of unhappily mated fish on my hands. And it is Irene Hayes' fault for sending them to me. What I really need these days is fish to fry. Ring Kernochen's bell!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"How I wish I had a stronger will power," you often say.

"It must be great to be born with a strong will power, like Mussolini or Cal Coolidge or any of those grim-jawed gents who Take Stands and stick to them. But I guess I'm one of those poor saps who have a wish-bone where their back-bones ought to be. I'm too sensitive—to easily swayed. I can't make up my mind, and then abide by it through hell and high water. I always wobble, always wonder if maybe I'm not wrong.

"What's that verse? 'I am master of my fate. I am the captain of my soul!' That's a great verse! I'd give a lot to be master of my fate. But I never will be. I'm not made that way. I always have to give in—do what other people want me to do. It's fierce to be made that way. How I envy people who are born with strong will powers!"

That the way you think and feel about will powers, stranger? Then you're wrong. People aren't born with strong or weak will powers—or any will power at all. WILL POWERS AREN'T BORN. THEY'RE MADE.

WILL POWER IS AN ACCUMULATION.

AN ACCUMULATION OF DECISIONS . . .

Ever since you were born you've been making decisions—weak decisions—strong decisions. Decisions to do things. Decisions not to do things. Brave, cowardly, eager, lazy, generous, stingy, mean, kind, honest, dishonest, conceited, humble decisions. A few of those decisions were very important—they marked big crises in your life. Most of the other decisions seemed insignificant. You forgot them almost as soon as they were made.

BUT ACTUALLY, NOT ONE DECISION WAS UNIMPORTANT.

Each decision left its record in your mind, left its mark on your life. Each decision made you stronger—or weaker.

THE DECISIONS NOT TO DO THINGS WERE EXACTLY AS IMPORTANT AS THE DECISIONS TO DO THINGS.

Did you ever think of it in that way before? Did you ever realize that when you decided NOT to do things—when you side-stepped and ducked, dodged and evaded, you were TAKING A STAND as surely as though you had decided to embark on the most reckless adventure. You were. Each of those "play safe" decisions helped to shape your policy—helped to make you what you are today.

YOUR WILL POWER IS THE ACCUMULATION OF ALL THOSE PAST DECISIONS.

What happens when you face a problem? You think you face that problem with a free mind—but you don't. You face it with a mind that has been molded—or muddled—by 20 or 40 or 60 years of strong or weak decision. You'll be firm or fluttery . . . vigorous or vacillating . . . according to all the attitudes you have taken when you faced previous problems.

Have you a weak will power? Then don't blame Papa or Mama for it. You've wished it on yourself, stranger. Which seems pretty discouraging. But remember this—

IF YOU CAN WISH WEAKNESS ON YOURSELF, YOU CAN ALSO WISH STRENGTH ON YOURSELF. And if you unfortunately haven't accumulated a strong character in the past, you can start accumulating one now.
